SHELTON BROTHERS ON TRIAL; COURT UNDER GUARD

Testimony in $15,000 Col-linville Mail Robbery Case Begun After Jury Is Selected Quickly.

BIRGER AND NEWMAN ARE THEIR ACCUSERS

Three Alleged Mail Robbers Face Same Judge Who Sent 'Dinty' Colbeck and Aids to Prison.

A staff correspondent of the Post-Dispatch, Ill., Jan. 31.—The Birger and the Shelton range met in a new battleground here today. The scene has shifted from the hard roads of Southern Illinois to the Federal Building at Quincy, and a Federal indictment charging Carl Earl and Bernie Shelton with the $15,000 Collinville mail robbery of Jan. 27, 1925, has supported the submachine gun as the most dangerous weapon Birger and his men have against the Sheltons. The testimony began at the afternoon session after opposing counsel outlined the case, the jury having been selected quick in the morning, under circumstances almost identical with those in which Colbeck and eight of his cohorts—the very backbone of the gang of St. Louis—were sent to prison in November, 1924, for a $100,000 mail robbery.

There is the same judge on the bench—the hard-driving, legally expert Louis Fitzhugh. There is the same United States Marshal, the soft-voiced James E. McCreary, and the same force of deputies that guarded the fugitives.

A final touch of similarity is found in the list of Government witnesses, which includes the names of Charlie Birger and his associate, Art Newman. Time was when they and the Sheltons made common cause against the K. K. Klan in Williamson County. It was after the break between Birger and the Sheltons that they became Government witnesses against their erstwhile friends.

Government Opens Case.—In his opening statement to the jury, District Attorney Province asserted he would prove that the three brothers committed the Collinville robbery. He declared he would show that Birger had numerous conferences in which they planned the crime; that they were in "their saloon" in East St. Louis in the morning of the robbery between 4 and 5 a. m.; that they left between 8 and 7 a. m. about an hour before the robbery; that they returned to the saloon afterwards, and then went to Harrisburg, where the loot was divided.

"I want to say that this case has nothing to do with any private feud that any of the Government witnesses may have with these defendants," Province said in closing. "I want it clearly understood that their testimony is admissible only to the crime for which they are being tried."

Each Person Searched and Questioned by Deputies. The courtroom was elaborately guarded, J. E. Dreesendorfer, Chief Deputy United States Marshal, outlining the precautions he took at the Birger trial. At the foot of the one stairway to the second floor of the Federal Building, two deputies searched and questioned each person who sought to ascend. At the head of the stairs the process was repeated by two more deputies, while in and about the building more deputies were posted to doors and windows and in the courtroom, while others worked "under cover" in hotel lobbies and elsewhere on the watch for any sort of a plot to assassinate or intimidate witnesses or defendants.

Seats in the courtroom were filled with veniremen, witnesses and a few spectators when Judge Fitzhugh took the bench and the trial called order at 10 a. m. Only about 25 operators succeeded in running the gauntlet of deputy marshals during the morning session, and in the afternoon only 10 men and three women—wives of the defendants—were in the spectators' section.

Just a few minutes before court opened, Earl and Bernie were escorted to the Federal Building in

THEATER ROBBERS GET $5200 DESPITE LIGHT TO AID POLICE

Safe at Liberty Music Hall, 3627 Delmar Boulevard, Looted of Week-End Receipts During the Night.

An electric light which is kept burning through the night in the office of the Liberty Music Hall, 3627 Delmar boulevard, so passing policemen may peer in through the window to see if all is well, was still burning at 8 a. m. today when an employee arrived and found the safe had been forced open and looted of week-end receipts, which the management reported to be $5200.

The robbery was committed some time after midnight, when the late show ended. John Christ, assistant to Oscar Dane, the general manager, discovered it. The robbers pried open a side door leading into the theater proper, passed into the lobby, and then broke a panel in the office floor, at the west side of the lobby, to reach through the aperture and unlock the door. After using tools to force open the outer and inner doors of a large square steel safe, the robbers found a heavy strong box containing the receipts. An explosive was employed to break the box. A fragment of a dry cell battery, found there indicated that a black powder blast had been set off by an electric spark. Scattered about the office were records and $455 in change, and a broken cold chisel, abandoned by the robbers. The strong box was empty. Dane said it had been filled with $5200, of which $300 to $400 was in change and the rest in currency of $10 and lower denominations. The loss is not insured.

POOL OF POWER INTERESTS

Representative Swing Criticizes Efforts to Defeat Boulder Canyon Dam Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—A charge that "a concentrated propaganda campaign" has been launched upon Congress by the power interests to defeat the Boulder Canyon bill for Boulder Canyon Dam in the Colorado River was made in the House today by Representative Swing (Rep.) of California.

Members have been swamped, he said, with a mass of erroneous and far-fetched statements by the project's opponents.

"I charge now," he said, "that the power interests have pooled to thwart Congress' intention to go through with this project, which is so vital to the lives and property of the people in the great Colorado River basin."

Members have been swamped, he said, with a mass of erroneous and far-fetched statements by the project's opponents.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 31.—When trial of the Browning separation suit was resumed after the noon recess today, the first "boy friend" of the trial was put on the stand and called a liar in open court by Mrs. Frances ("Peaches") Heenan Browning, who burst into tears and charged perjury.

"After telling of his acquaintance with Mrs. Browning before her marriage, James Nixon of Brooklyn, the young man, told of a telephone conversation between him and Mrs. Browning after both were married."

"Is this the young woman?" he was asked, as Attorney Epstein for Mrs. Browning pointed her out. "Yes," he said, nervously.

"He lies," cried Mrs. Browning. The Court rapped for order.

Mrs. Browning and a witness, about 15 years of age, who was sitting in the witness chair in front of the Court, were asked to stand.

"I never saw the man before in my life," she said. The Court rapped for order.

WIVES OF CONGRESSMEN IN HEATED ELECTION CAMPAIGN

Mrs. L. C. Dyer of St. Louis Candidate for Vice President of the Congressional Club.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Mrs. L. C. Dyer, who before her marriage to Senator Gerry of Rhode Island was Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt of Asheville, N. C., has been nominated for president of the Congressional Club, made up of wives of members of Congress.

Mrs. Henry W. Keiser, wife of Senator Keiser of New Hampshire, had been slated for the place, but withdrew in favor of Mrs. Gerry.

Nonetheless, she will continue to campaign against Mrs. Gerry. It is contended by a few dissatisfied members she is too wealthy for the position.

There is a heated fight over the nomination for the new president, which usually means promotion to the presidency. Mrs. L. C. Dyer, wife of Representative Dyer of St. Louis, a well-known and Mrs. Clyde Keiser, wife of Representative Keiser of Pennsylvania, are candidates.

The White House has become involved because Mrs. Everett Sanders, wife of the high seas, who was from Singapore to Honolulu, is a candidate.

At social functions, in fashionable hotels and stores and in the corridors of the Capitol, the rival factions are active.

CORONER ARRESTED FOR ILLEGAL NARCOTICS SALE

Dr. L. A. T. Meyer of Cole County in Possession of Marked Money, Officer Says.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 31.—Dr. L. A. T. Meyer, coroner of Cole County, was arrested here yesterday by a Federal agent and Sheriff L. C. Whitson of Cole County on a charge of selling narcotics and was held in the Cole county jail last night.

United States Commissioner Province bound him over to the Federal Court for the Western District of Missouri. Dr. Meyer did not enter a plea. His bond was fixed by the Commissioner at $100, which he furnished.

Sheriff Whitson said an investigation was begun at the time Dr. Meyer was arrested. He was alleged to have sold narcotics to a drug addict in the jail. A Federal agent was tonight here, and that three separate purchases of narcotics were made from Dr. Meyer through a woman detective. Dr. Meyer had marked money given him on one of the purchases in his possession. Whitson said.

35 MOROS KILLED WHEN U. S. FORCES STORM FORT

Rebel Datu Tahil's Wife, Former Illinois U.
Student, Removed Before Attack on Philippine Stronghold.

PRINCESS TARHATO KIRAN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Thirty-five Moros were killed and an undetermined number wounded at dawn today by Philippine constabulary under Col. Luther R. Stevens in an attack on Datu Tahil's fortress on the island of Jolo.

Attempts to end the Moro uprising peacefully having failed, the constabulary attacked the stronghold with tear gas and rifles. The fighting was continued for several hours, says a dispatch to the Manila Daily Bulletin from Zamboanga.

The Moro resistance proving futile, the Tahil, as on the last occasion when he resisted Government forces, fled, leaving his 200 ignorant followers to carry on the fight and take their punishment.

The Sultan of Sulu and Hadji Butu, a prominent Moro chieftain, went to Tahil's fort yesterday and tried without success to persuade him to surrender. They succeeded, however, in taking of the fort the Princess Tarhato Kiran before the fighting began. The Princess, who formerly attended the University of Illinois, became wife No. 4 of Tahil and for months has been living in his fort. This delayed the attack, the constabulary fearing that she might be killed in the fighting.

One Count Dismissed.—One count of the joint indictment charging Ferguson and Baggot with conspiracy to use the mails to defraud, was dismissed today by District Attorney Baggot, leaving eight counts charging mail fraud.

Ferguson, in beginning his testimony, said he was 45 years old, was born near Ebersburg, Tenn., and educated in the common schools thereabout. He worked in his home town as a dry goods clerk, then with a small wholesale dry goods house in Paducah, Ky., and 39 years ago he came to St. Louis, and got from Murray Carleton, his first job as a salesman for the Wear-Boogher Dry Goods Co. Carleton was a junior partner in the house, which was first at Sixth and St. Charles streets, then at Ninth street and Washington avenue.

The company, at first a partnership, he said, was later incorporated with Carleton as vice president. As salesman, he had a Southern territory. After 10 years with the house, he went over to Ely-Walker, and was house salesman there for five years.

About 1908, he said, some 50 salesmen for wholesale firms organized the Ferguson-McKinney Dry Goods Co. The sale to the Carleton Dry Goods Co., and the formation of the Carleton-Ferguson company to handle born concerns came about 12 years ago, he said. Ferguson-McKinney then became a manufacturing company, dealing in shipments.

"I Did What He Told Me"—There was never a meeting of the stockholders of the Ferguson-McKinney Manufacturing Co., he said in reply to a question. "The minutes were simply written up by Secretary Baggot, as Carleton's instruction. Mr. Carleton handled the finances and was head of the business. I did what he told me to."

Ferguson told of the stock issue of the Ferguson-McKinney Manufacturing Co., $1,000,000 preferred non-voting stock, of which Carleton-Ferguson held $200,000, and Ferguson held $100,000, and $1,500,000 common voting stock, held by Carleton-Ferguson, except for one share held by Ferguson.

Court Denies Motion to Dis-

One Count in Indictment Dropped.

Forrest Ferguson, president of the defunct Ferguson-McKinney Manufacturing Co., testifying in his own defense this afternoon in Federal Judge Davis' court, told of his relations with the late Murray Carleton, treasurer and financial backer of the company. He declared that Carleton gave him the orders which he executed, and that he had implicit confidence in Carleton.

Ferguson's testimony began after demurrers filed in behalf of him and his co-defendant, Alvin F. Baggot, secretary of the company, had been overruled. The demurrers were overruled by Judge Davis' ruling on the demurrers was not formally announced. He said merely, on opening the afternoon session of court.

"The defense will now present its case." The defense counsel, in the morning argument, had sought to show that Ferguson and Baggot had not been proved, by the Government's testimony, heard last week, to be criminally responsible for false figures in the company's financial statement of Feb. 28, 1925, by which loans of $3,350,000 were obtained from banks, entailing a loss of $1,500,000 in the crash of the company the following October.

PEKIN REQUESTS BRITAIN TO CANCEL TROOP MOVEMENT

Foreign Minister of Northern Chinese Government Protests Against Sending of Troops to Shanghai.

ACT "CONTRARY TO LEAGUE COVENANT"

Declares Large Force Might Cause Complications for Which China Could Not Be Responsible.

By the Associated Press.

PEKIN, Jan. 31.—V. K. Wellington Koo, Foreign Minister of the Northern Government, today addressed a note to the British legation here protesting against the dispatch of British forces to Shanghai and asked that it be transmitted to London in the hope that the British Government would "give necessary instructions for the immediate withdrawal of troops dispatched to China so nothing untoward may happen to mar the friendly relations of the two nations."

The Foreign Minister's note said the "dispatch of additional naval and military forces to China is contrary to the spirit of the League of Nations covenant. It cannot be over-emphasized that the national spirit of the Chinese people has been developed, and the military movement on the part of the British Government is liable to lead to serious misunderstandings."

Dr. Koo further declared that if the object of the expedition is merely to protect the Shanghai international settlement, it is unnecessary, as the Chinese authorities are capable of doing that while "the presence of a large number of foreign troops in this area might lead to unforeseen complications, for which the Chinese Government could not be held responsible."

The note expressed surprise that Great Britain had decided to send to China "a large number of regular troops, warships, and airplanes," which "cannot be deemed the most extraordinary action."

It declared that the expedition also was contrary to a resolution adopted by the League of Nations, in which the powers agreed to respect China's sovereignty and withdraw all troops stationed in China not in conformity with the provisions of existing treaties.

AMERICAN INMATE IN SHANGHAI—John Kerr, insane asylum, an American institution here, is to close immediately as the result of a proclamation issued by the National Government regulating the operation of hospitals.

The regulations provide that hospitals must refer any trouble with employees to the Government for arbitration, pending which the hospital may dismiss none of the employees affected. It was declared at the Kerr asylum that acceptance of the regulations was impossible, for a dispute would result in protracted arbitration, during which authority at the hospital would be paralyzed.

On Trial for $15,000 Collinsville Robbery

Shelton Brothers on Trial Under Guard

the patrol, from the city jail. They entered the courtroom as the calling of the jury panel began. Earl, sleek, dark-eyed and well fed, and Bernie, just a trifle smaller, just a bit less inclined to stoutness. They were smiling.

Then Carl Shelton entered. He had spent the night at the Quince Hotel as the only one of the three who was able to make the $60,000 and set by the Government. Taller and leaner than his brothers, he was clad in a wrinkled gabardine coat, and carried a gray slouch hat in his hand. His tie was knotted loosely in a soft-collared shirt and his face was shaded by a slight stubble of beard.

He smiled as he crossed the courtroom and took his seat near his brothers with whom he shook hands. The smiling, black-browed trio conversed for a minute or two, their faces in animation, showing a striking family resemblance.

Then they settled back to listen to routine preliminaries, in which their attorneys, Walter Bandy of Granite City and Edmund Burke of Springfield, were taking a busy part.

Another similarity to the Egan trial, Bandy and Burke were among the defense counsel when Colbeck and his aids were sent to prison for 25 years.

The selection of the jury took only an hour. Twenty-six veniremen were questioned, the Government challenging only one, a man who remarked, when asked if he had heard anything of the robbery, "I was greatly surprised when I came in to find that the Shelton boys were charged with robbery."

The defense challenged nine men, for reasons they did not divulge. To expedite the jury selection, Judge Fitzhugh did the questioning, asking each if he had read in the newspapers about the robbery.

"Of course, all of you have read about the Shelton and Birger feud," he said, "but remember we are not trying them for that, but for robbery."

The jurors are Scott Wheeler, a farmer of Liberty; Martin Wolf, merchant of Springfield; Harry Parsell, farmer, Jerseyville; Harry Pratt, insurance agent, Rushville; Edward Hildreth, farmer, Virginia; Mark Garrison, merchant, Rushville; Claude Killian, farmer, Jerseyville; Daniel K. Kiser, farmer, Pittsfield; E. J. Howell, telephone manager, Decatur; Van Russell, merchants, Nokomis; George C. Dean, farmer, Adams; and Andy Fry, grain elevator manager, Roodhouse.

Defendants' Wives in Court.—During the forenoon the wives of the three defendants sat together in the rear row of the courtroom, and at 11:50 a. m., when a brief recess was called, they stepped forward to kiss their husbands and mingle with them at the counsel tables.

Earl Shelton turned to a reporter and berated Birger, talking with unusual rapidity. "Don't ever let that guy slip up back of you," he chattered. "He'll shoot you in the back. He's that kind of a guy. Don't be surprised if you see him come in here with a machine gun and stand it in front of the witness chair when he testifies."

Birger is expected to testify that the Sheltons later brought the money to his Williamson County roadhouse, "Shady Rest," since bombed and burned to the ground, and that they divided the loot there. Other Government witnesses have been summoned to offer confirmatory details.

STOP 'WHISPERING GALLERY'—American Publishers Suspend Publication of Pseudo Diary.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Publication of "The Whispering Gallery," a volume of pseudo anecdotes and gossip about men and women prominent in English social and political life, has been suspended in the United States. It was announced today by Horace Liveright, publisher.

"We came to the conclusion that 'The Whispering Gallery' is not an authentic document," Liveright said. "We published it believing it to be a serious and genuine work. During litigation in London the author, Heathcote Pearson, declared it a fraud. The book, the author said in court, was only supposedly drawn from the diary of Sir Rennell Rodd, and he thought the English publishers were aware of this."

He was acquitted recently when tried for circulating money by pretense in connection with its publication.

TWO CONVICTS INJURED WHEN BARRACKS BURNS

22 Escape From Blazing Structure at Prison Camp Opposite Jefferson City.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 31.—Fire starting from an overheated stove destroyed a two-story brick barracks building on State Prison Farm No. 2, across the Missouri River from Jefferson City, early today. The 22 convicts in the barracks were aroused in time to escape, but two of them were severely burned.

James W. Gallagher, serving 15 years from St. Louis for robbery, suffered burns on his hands and face, and C. M. Bradford, serving five years from Macon County for bank robbery, was burned on the left arm and left side. Bradford was the last man to leave the burning building and narrowly escaped being caught by a section of the roof when it fell. Burning embers falling on his bunk aroused him.

Loss estimated at $5000. The roof of the building was in flames when the fire was discovered about 5 a. m. by a convict cook, William Foley of St. Louis. Foley gave the alarm. No fire fighting equipment is kept at the prison farm and the convicts were unable to check the flames. The roof and part of the walls collapsed. The building was erected about four years ago, and was cheaply constructed. Prison officials estimated the loss at not more than $5000. All the convicts at Farm No. 2 are trustees and guards on duty there sleep in a separate building.

NEGRO CLUBBED TO DEATH AND ROBBED NEAR HOME—Body of Alvin Turner, 60, Found in Lot Only Few Doors From House.

Alvin Turner, 60 years old, Negro, of 6111 Benedict avenue, was found dead near his home early today, robbery apparently being the motive. A policeman found his body, the pockets of the clothing turned out and torn, in a lot behind a warehouse at 5100 Benedict avenue, at 8:15 a. m.

His daughter, who saw him leave the house at 4 a. m. on his way to work as an iron works fireman, said he usually carried $50 to $100. He had no money on him when found.

Police think he was struck over the head with a club a few feet from his door, pursued for 100 feet and hit over the head again with a heavy iron bolt. His skull was crushed. The club and Turner's hat were found near the door and a trail of blood led to the body, beside which lay the 20-inch bolt.

ADMITTS SHORTAGE IN FUNDS—By the Associated Press. OWENSBORO, Ky., Jan. 31.—James Keeley, 60 years old, for 20 years prominent in fraternal and business life, today admitted that there was a shortage in his accounts as secretary of the Masonic Temple Co., owner of the largest office building in the city.

Auditors reported that the shortage probably would be $20,000. Keeley said that he believed the shortage to be about $7000. "I should have known better. It is a terrible mess," he said. Failure of a bank here contributed to his shortage, he said. No warrant has been taken out for his arrest, although he was indicted by the grand jury of the county jail and probably will be returned to the reformatory as a parole violator.

BILL WOULD PROTECT STATE EMPLOYEES FROM GIFT FUNDS

Seeks to Curb Inroads Into Salaries by Donations for Superiors and for Campaigns.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 31.—Introduction of a bill to curb the increasing number of assessments upon the salaries of State employees for gifts to superiors, department contingent funds, political expense accounts and party campaign funds is planned by Representative T. J. Roney of Jasper County, author of the anti-nepotism bill now pending in the House.

"Kicking in" on a subscription list of some sort has become part of the routine for employees in some of the departments in the capital, aside from the requirement every two years that they contribute one per cent or more of a year's salary to the campaign fund of the party then in control of the capital.

Most of these subscription lists are labeled "voluntary" by the office politicians or committees that circulate them, but the employees realize they carry an implied requirement to donate.

In recent months most of the departments had subscription funds for Christmas gifts to superiors, one department contributed to the expenses of a department head who wanted to attend a convention in another state, a fund was raised to buy a $3500 grand piano for the Governor, as a gift, and various funds have been raised in the highway department to buy gifts for retiring superiors.

Roney's bill would protect penalty for any attempt at coercion.

ADMITTS SHORTAGE IN FUNDS—By the Associated Press. OWENSBORO, Ky., Jan. 31.—James Keeley, 60 years old, for 20 years prominent in fraternal and business life, today admitted that there was a shortage in his accounts as secretary of the Masonic Temple Co., owner of the largest office building in the city.

Auditors reported that the shortage probably would be $20,000. Keeley said that he believed the shortage to be about $7000. "I should have known better. It is a terrible mess," he said. Failure of a bank here contributed to his shortage, he said. No warrant has been taken out for his arrest, although he was indicted by the grand jury of the county jail and probably will be returned to the reformatory as a parole violator.

SLAYER OF HOLDUP MAN EXONERATED

Coroner's Jury Finds Sam Zawayk Was Justified in Shooting George Creed Jr.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

A verdict of justifiable homicide was returned today at a Coroner's inquest in the death of George Creed Jr., 19 years old, of 1981 Gamble street, who was fatally shot by Sam Zawayk, grocer, at 343 North Whittier street, during a holdup in the store Saturday evening.

Zawayk was exonerated after he told again how he drew his revolver from a side trousers pocket while Creed held a wrench against his side. He fired at close range, thinking Creed held a revolver, and shot the young robber near the heart. Creed died early yesterday at the City Hospital.

Police are searching for Creed's companion who fled from the store when Zawayk fired and who exchanged shots with the grocer's son, Nathan, as he climbed into an automobile. A stolen machine containing three bullet holes was found yesterday in front of 2300 Madison avenue and identified by young Zawayk as the car in which the robber escaped.

Mrs. Edith McQuerty of 4208 Westminister place, who was hit by a stray bullet while walking with her 3-year-old son across the store, is at City Hospital recovering and a wound in the left shoulder.

Creed was a nephew of Thomas and Robert Creed, brothers, sent to prison for killing Policeman George E. Gleaser here in 1926. Zawayk, a native of Poland, had carried a revolver in his right hand trousers pocket for 17 years against the day he would need to use it as a robber, and his son had adopted the same practice. Zawayk said he had never fired the pistol before except once each year on the Fourth of July when he emptied it in the air.

FOR DISARMAMENT OF BLEND—The Rev. L. R. Jenkins, pastor of the Central Baptist Church, today addressed a meeting of the members of the Abatement League before the churches started out with the week's "Smoke Abatement" campaign.

He asked the question, "Is a preacher needed in a church?" and replied in the negative with the text, "The weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but spiritual." To show that he was not talking theory only, he told of his own experience with a man who called at his study, drunk, armed and angry at him, and whom he dissuaded from his purpose.

Girl, 3, Drunk Poison.—Georgia Nieman, two years old, drank poison this morning while rummaging a medicine cabinet at her home, 2114 South Eighth street. The child climbed on a chair to reach the cabinet, according to her father, George, who took her to City Hospital. She is expected to recover.

8 PRISONERS IN BELLEVILLE JAIL MAKE ESCAPE

Remove Open Padlock With a Hook, Saw Bar and Squeeze Through 12 x 24-Inch Opening.

OTHERS IN CELLS GIVE THE ALARM

All of the Fugitives Are Accused of Felonies — None of Them Has Been Recaptured.

A wire coat hanger, a small steel saw and 10 feet of rope from a dumb waiter were the implements used by eight prisoners who escaped from the second floor of the St. Clair County jail at Belleville, last night.

The hanger, twisted into a long hook was used to lift an open padlock from a tie door and the saw was used to cut a one-inch steel bar from a rear window. Crawling through an opening 24 inches high and 12 inches wide, the prisoners slid down eight feet to the jail yard and climbed a 10-foot board fence.

The cry of "Jail break!" from other prisoners in the cell room at 8 o'clock aroused Deputy Jailers Carl Rosenberg and Val Schnipper, who ran up from the first floor office, too late to catch even a glimpse of the fugitives.

No clues to the whereabouts of any of those who escaped has been found.

Among the escaped prisoners was Robert Kennedy, 17 years old, confessed robber, who was to have been the State's star witness today in the trial of five men charged with the $8100 holdup of a payroll car of the East St. Louis & Suburban Railway, July 19. The trial was continued because of his escape.

All Accused of Felonies. The others, all awaiting trial for felonies, were Bruce McConnell, 25, charged with complicity in the $10,538 Bremer, Ill., bank hold-up in 1924; Carl Jensen, 19, and Charles W. Bodnar, 23, charged with highway robbery; Stensel Saylor, 23, charged with 12 filling station robberies; Oscar Fields, 23, charged with stealing a mule; N. H. Compton, forger; and Robert McAllister, passing worthless checks.

The eight men, with nine others who did not avail themselves of the chance to escape were in one cell tier, which opened on a corridor with other tiers. The individual cells had not yet been locked for the night, and the men had the freedom of the tier, the barred door of which was secured by the open padlock. One of the cost-hangers, which the men were permitted to have in their cells, was pulled out straight and apparently was used to reach through the bars and lift the lock from its hasp.

Saw Smuggled in Two Weeks Ago. The saw was found on the floor beside the window which opened in the corridor. After the men were gone, Deputy Saylor one of the other prisoners set up the cry of "Jail break!" He said the last man to climb out had a revolver and threatened to shoot if there was an outcry, but other prisoners said they saw no revolver. The saw, jailers were told, was smuggled in two weeks ago by a trusty who was released Jan. 17 after working out a peace disturbance fine.

Immediately after the jail delivery, all deputy sheriffs and police of the city were ordered out to search for the fugitives. According to reports, four of the men were seen walking toward East St. Louis and four walking going south.

Sheriff Ahrens announced today he was investigating to determine if there had been any negligence. It was not customary to lock the tier padlocks because they worked awkwardly and it was thought to be impossible that one might be removed from the inside. In 1917 four men escaped from the jail and in 1924 an attempted delivery was frustrated.

McConnell was the only one of six men charged with the Bremer bank robbery awaiting trial. He was at large when four of the others were tried and sent to the penitentiary. Saylor was considered dangerous because he exchanged shots with East St. Louis police men before his arrest.

Four Socialists Killed, 24 Wounded. Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News, Copyright, 1927. VIENNA, Jan. 29.—Four persons were killed and 24 were injured yesterday at the town of Leobersbach, when fascists fired on a Socialist parade. The Kahlenkreuzers and fascists, from the windows of the inn fired several shots over the heads of the Socialists, presumably as a warning as the latter marched to their meeting place. The Socialists informed the police and were promised protection. The Socialists again marched past the inn, singing. The fascists waited until the majority had passed and then opened fire. One of those killed was an 8-year-old boy.

SAYS CHRISTIANITY DOES NOT NEED ANTI-EVOLUTION LAWS

Legislators Who Introduce Them as Ignorant.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 31.—"Legislators who bring up anti-evolution bills for vote either are ignorant of the true genius of Christianity or are bidding for the votes of the most ignorant among their constituents," said the Rev. G. E. Wharton, rector of Grace Episcopal Church of Jefferson City in his sermon yesterday, in commenting on the anti-evolution bill now pending in the Missouri Legislature.

There is no conflict between true religion and true science, he said. "Real Christian people want all the truth," he said, "and all truth comes from God. It does not matter whether it is expressed through theologians or scientists. It is folly for people to propose and pass anti-evolution laws."

He declared such legislation was beyond the proper scope of the Legislature. Several members of the Legislature heard the sermon, but none of them was known as a supporter of the bill now pending. "The Christian Church got along better in the first 300 years of its existence when it was persecuted by the State, than it is doing when so many members of the church are asking for State protection through laws and the sword," the Rev. Mr. Wharton said. "When the church has to depend upon the State, it ceases to be a power for righteousness. If Christianity cannot win without the arm of the law and the sword of the State, it had better pass out of existence."

He expressed the opinion that man did not necessarily descend from the monkey, but that man and monkey probably sprang originally from the same species. "Man accepted a moral responsibility and advanced," he said. "He was raised from the unmoral to the moral state when God gave him a soul. The monkey did not advance because it did not accept moral responsibility."

CHARTER FOR STATE WETS RECOMMENDED BY REFEREE

Judge Calhoun Takes Under Adversity Plea for Pro Forma Decree of Incorporation.

The Missouri Association Against Prohibition, which calls itself an organization "to educate American citizens in the principles of Constitutional Government," is entitled to a pro forma decree of incorporation, former Judge Franklin Miller reported in his capacity of referee to Circuit Judge Calhoun today.

The referee says that the Association wishes to separate from the National Association which has local branches in every State, and plans an educational campaign of its own. Henry S. Priest is president and Robert H. Keiser secretary.

Judge Calhoun took the matter under advisement.

MRS. BROWNING SHOUTS "LIAR" AT WITNESS IN COURT

She denied Miss Tussey had told of knowledge of improper acts of Mrs. Browning.

Louisa Croner, wife of the land-lord, denied that Browning had said in her presence that he would "make it worth while for anybody to recollect" things against Mrs. Browning.

Wife Told of Troubles. Leslie Fullenweider, who works for a newspaper feature syndicate, testified he saw Mrs. Browning on the Thursday before she left her husband.

"She told me Mrs. Browning was becoming unbearable and asked 'What shall I do?'" said the witness. "I said, 'We are newspaper people, not lawyers.'"

Nothing, he said, was said about writing any articles at that time. The following Tuesday, he said, he saw her and her mother, but newspaper articles were not discussed until Wednesday. A contract was signed Saturday, Oct. 9, for $1000. It was introduced as evidence.

Diary Based on Clippings. The "honey-moon diary," the syndicate man said, was written considerably after the honeymoon, and was based on press clippings and post cards and letters. After the diary was written in the News Syndicate office it was taken to Mrs. Heenan and Mrs. Browning for their joint approval. At one point the witness was called upon to identify the diary. He looked over a many-page document and handed it back to Mack.

"This," he observed, "seems to be another document, called 'Why I Married Peaches,' by Browning." When court opened day attorney for a tabloid, subpoenaed to produce pertinent stories, photographs, plates, etc., appeared to argue for modification of the court order to produce them. He said several trunks would be necessary to take them, and the court agreed to modification "within reason."

Fullenweider in his testimony said Browning had asked him if Mrs. Browning had kissed him. "What were his words?" asked Attorney Epstein of Mrs. Browning's counsel.

"Why," said Fullenweider, "he said, 'You and Mrs. Browning have engaged in osculations, haven't you?'" "I just laughed," said the witness.

Landlord Called Browning. Croner admitted, on cross-examination, that he had called Browning voluntarily after he had learned that Miss Tussey knew Mrs. Browning, but he denied he had received any money for his information.

His wife said a man who accompanied Browning did not talk during the session, but that Browning "just sat there in a chair and didn't open his mouth."

John S. Gaden, associate of Fullenweider, testified that he "wrote or compiled" the articles under discussion.

Frank Bolan, tabloid reporter, testified that Mrs. Browning needed "some urging," but not a great deal, to pose for photographs.

ROBBER IS SHOT TO DEATH IN FIGHT WITH DETECTIVES

Edward Sachse Opens Fire on East St. Louis Officers and Flees When They Try to Arrest Him.

Edward Sachse, former president of the St. Louis Bill Posters' Union, who had served a jail term for killing a man, and has been arrested in connection with two other killings, was shot to death early yesterday in a fight with police officers and detectives in East St. Louis. Later he was identified as a gasoline filling station robber.

He was 44 years old and lived with his wife, Zora, at 517A Missouri avenue. He was president of the White Posting Co., and the White Express Co., at 604 Missouri, and was sometimes known as Edward White and as Edward Sawyer.

At 2 a. m., he was in a restaurant at 411 Collinsville avenue with Jack Daughdrill, 27, a bill poster of 522A Collinsville avenue, and James Boyle, 21, dinner of 444 North Fifth street. He quarreled with Boyle and the latter, knowing Sachse had a revolver, ran out.

Details of the Shooting. A block north of the restaurant Detective Sergeant Dean Harris and Detective Patrick Boyle stopped the fleeing man and, when he told of the disturbance, put him in their car and drove to the restaurant. As they stopped in front of the restaurant, Boyle, Daughdrill, who had gone to Sachse's car across the street, were not to drive away.

"We're police officers," Harris shouted, and then, according to the police and officers, Sachse drew a revolver and fired into the police car. The police drew their revolvers and returned the fire. The fight continued, with Sachse running through the doorway of a furniture store, Harris firing from in front of the restaurant, and Boyle from the middle of the street. Daughdrill and Boyle took no part.

Altogether, 17 revolver bullets and one riot gun shell were fired. Sachse and the two detectives emptied their revolvers. Sergeant Harris finishing up with a riot gun. Sachse collapsed in a pool of blood and died in a few minutes, without making a statement. Four bullets and six slugs had entered his abdomen and shoulders.

Charles Mahoney, proprietor of a filling station at North and Mississippi, viewed the body and identified it as that of the armed robber who held him up and escaped with $30 Saturday night. The shooting, on Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, hushed thoroughfare, gave rise to rumors that the Shelton and Birger gangs had met there.

Sachse, while president of the St. Louis Bill Posters' Union, Local No. 5, shot and killed Adolph Mason, a coal miner of Valer, Ill., at Fifteenth and Pine streets, April 20, 1921. Police arrived to find Sachse kneeling on the sidewalk beside the body, praying for Mason. At the trial Sachse pleaded self-defense, but was convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to six months in jail.

Once Tried for Murder. In 1903 Sachse and Emil Turk were tried for the murder of John Hoag, a cigar maker, in his store at 114 South Fourth street. Turk was sentenced to 10 years in prison and Sachse was acquitted.

In 1924, Sachse was arrested in Detroit with John Dunn, a former convict, in connection with the killing of George Kellow. A police theory was that a quarrel over a auto-blowing job was back of the crime. Disposition of this case is not of record here. Prior to that arrest, Sachse had been arrested 32 times by St. Louis police on various charges, including 20 charges of peace disturbance. His funeral will be tomorrow from his residence to Holy Cross Cemetery.

Police Board to Lobby for Bill. The four Police Commissioners will go to Jefferson City Wednesday to urge passage in the Legislature of bills providing for a police pension fund and addition of 364 men to personnel of the department, at an estimated addition at cost of $750,000 a year.

WEALTHY MAN KILLS SELF, WAS TO WED IN FEBRUARY

John Van Doren, 47, Found Dead of Gas in Home at Forest Hills, L. I.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—John Van Doren, 47 years old, wealthy vice president of a stone and marble firm, was found dead in the kitchen of his luxurious home in Forest Hills Saturday night. His head rested on a table, and the room filled with gas from two open jets in the range. Farewell notes to his fiancée and relatives were at hand.

Van Doren was a wealthy widower, seen sometimes in company with a brunette whom he introduced as Miss Bora, his intended wife. They were to be wed next month. His first wife, a chronic invalid, died two years ago. It was the post St. Louis Morning Journal yesterday that Van Doren had married again and subsequently sued for annulment, charging his wife with fraud on the ground that she was suffering from progressive melancholia, an incurable madness, and had failed to tell him. His second wife made two attempts to kill herself, once with gas and again with poison, before she was sent to a sanatorium by her husband.

Van Doren's friends said he seemed happy and without worry.

PLAN BLOOD TEST TO TELL WHETHER DRIVER IS DRUNK

Philadelphia Police to Adopt System If Experiments Prove Successful.

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 31.—Blood tests to determine if a person is intoxicated will be adopted by Philadelphia police if experiments now under way show the plan to be feasible, said Director of Public Safety Elliott today. The test will be of especial value in determining whether an allegedly drunken automobilist is sober or not.

Experiments have shown in the case of dead persons that traces of alcohol remain in the blood for several hours without change in proportion.

Farmer Shot by Neighbor Dies.

By the Associated Press. LOUISIANA, Mo., Jan. 31.—Richard Clinton, Pike County farmer, died in a Hannibal hospital as a result of a bullet wound suffered Thursday in a quarrel with Thomas Baker, a fellow tenant, on a farm near here. Clinton said he did not know why Baker shot him. The two men met on the highway and Baker fired. Baker is still at large.

"TOO BAD" She will have to work to educate the children now. He seemed like such a smart fellow.

HEAD OF CLOTHING FIRM HIT BY AUTO DIES OF INJURIES

Walter L. Schmitz Succumbed to Fractured Skull Suffered When Walking Near Home.

A Coroner's verdict of criminal carelessness was returned today in the case of Walter L. Schmitz, president and treasurer of the Schmitz & Schroder Clothing Co., who died at St. Luke's Hospital yesterday of skull fracture and other injuries suffered Friday evening when struck by an automobile at Waterman and Belt avenues, as he was walking to his home at 415 Belt avenue.

The driver, Jerome Hunthausen, 24 years old, a motorbus chauffeur of 5756 Pershing avenue, was held under $5000 bond. He testified that he had been driving automobiles for 10 years; and, on advice of counsel, said no more. He had told police he did not see Schmitz until after the latter was struck by his Ford coupe.

A witness, James M. Diven, of 5539 Waterman avenue, testified it was "highly probable" neither Hunthausen nor Schmitz saw each other before the collision, because it was smoky and foggy at the time—6:15 p. m.—and two posts at the southwest corner obscured the view.

Hunthausen was driving east in Waterman, and Schmitz was walking north, on the west side of Belt, with Diven walking about 60 feet behind him. Diven said Hunthausen was driving 15 or 20 miles an hour, and stopped about 60 feet after striking Schmitz. Hunthausen assisted in removing Schmitz to the hospital.

Schmitz was 45 years old, and had been connected with the clothing company since his graduation from Princeton in 1905. During the war he served overseas as a captain of infantry and participated in the Argonne drive.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Madge McEwen Schmitz, his sons, Arthur and Alan; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Schmitz; his brothers, Dr. Edgar Schmitz and Rudolph Schmitz Jr., and sister, Miss Adele Schmitz. The funeral will be at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow from the home of his parents at 5385 Waterman avenue, followed by cremation at Valhalla.

Boy, 7, Badly Hurt By Auto Driven By Woman.

Frank Tye, 7, of 1107 O'Fallon avenue, and his brother, Joseph, 8, ran across Franklin avenue at Eleventh street, at 6:50 p. m. yesterday, and Frank was struck by the automobile of Mrs. Laura Walter, 3729 Glasgow avenue, suffering a fractured skull. The boys said they ran because a man on the sidewalk had "scared" them. The man, however, told police the boys had asked him for a nickel, and he sought to question them.

Ended Life by Shooting

RAYMOND NEILL.

YOUNG MAN'S DEATH SUICIDE, CORONER'S JURY DECIDES

Raymond Neill, 22, Killed Himself by Shooting in Father's Commission Office.

A Coroner's verdict of suicide was returned today in the case of Raymond Neill, 22 years old, of 4124W Kosuth avenue, who shot and killed himself Saturday night in the office of Henry Neill & Son, commission house, at 1119 North Third street, conducted by his father and brother, Irving.

A policeman, trying the door, at 10 o'clock, found it unlocked and walked in. Neill's body was slumped in a chair with a bullet wound in the abdomen. An automatic pistol with one cartridge discharged was on a nearby desk.

His father and brother testified at today's inquest that he had been melancholy since suffering a nervous breakdown six months ago. They attributed his condition to overwork. He was employed as a draftsman at the Scullin Steel Co.

TAILERS OF NATION GATHER IN ST. LOUIS

ducational Conferences Will Open Week's Convention
Tomorrow Evening.

Advanced registration of delegates to the seventh semiannual convention of the American Retail-Association began today at the Hotel Statler. The session will continue until Feb. 3. Tomorrow evening, Wednesday and Thursday sessions will be given over to educational sessions, and business sessions will occupy the remaining days.

The organization, headed by L.
Boone of Elkton, Ky., is three one-half years old and has a membership of 4300 retailers.
men from 41 states. At the request of the members, the program will be held in the evenings.
Tomorrow night K. F. Niemoelman, manager of the Associated Retailers of St. Louis, will speak on "Business in Business." Ernest C.
Kings, president of the Caldwell Co., Inc., of Washington, Pa., will speak on "Today's Business Problems." and Finley P. Curtis, vice president of E. P. Curtis & Sons of Memphis, Tenn., will speak on "Putting a Kick into the Mail Bag."

Advertising Clubs Topic.
J. T. Duker Jr., president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, and former president of the National Advertising Association, will speak on "The Deeper Meaning of Advertising Club Work." This part of the program is arranged by the Advertising Club of St. Louis.

W. T. Duker Jr., sales manager of the W. T. Duker Co., of Quin-cinn, will talk on "Stock Simplification, Turnover and Unit Control." Wednesday night, followed an address on "How to Retail Profitably" by Frank Stockdale of Stockdale Retailers' Service of Chicago. Stockdale has studied all problems for more than 22 years and is recognized as a national authority on the subject.
How an Ad Club Will Help
Your Community, will be the subject of the address by H. T.
Samann, president of the Advertising Club of St. Louis.

Senator Reed Speaks Thursday. is the feature event of the convention. Senator James A. Reed will address the members at the Hotel Statler at 7 p. m. in the ballroom. His subject, "The Retailer's Problem," has not been announced. It is described as "A Message of National Importance."

In a survey of general business conditions in the country, President Hoover said today that the retail "prosperity" is shown in seven-tenths of the retail States being considered d, in two-tenths very good, and one-tenth only fair.

One of the most serious problems affecting the retailer, he said, is the low price of farm products.
A solution, Boone believes, is more legislation, but more education and co-operation between banker, business man and merchandise, and the substitution of a simplified program to curtail the sale of over-produced crops.

WHEELER FORECASTS BREAK WITH MEXICO BY MARCH 4

Senator Tells New York
Audience Coolidge Policy Tends Toward War.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—That the administration is pursuing a policy calculated to involve us in war with Mexico, and by the time the next Congress adjourns, this administration will have severed diplomatic relations with the Calles government, is the belief expressed today by United States Senator Wheeler of Montana at a meeting in the Hotel Statler.
Under the auspices of the non-intervention Citizens' Committee, about 1500 persons who attending the meeting adopted a resolution against intervention in either Mexico or Nicaragua and in favor of the Senate resolution for investigation of American investments in concessions in foreign countries.

Dr. Hubert C. Herring, secretary of the Social Relations Department of the Congressional Churches of United States, who recently organized an unofficial committee of Americans which went to Mexico to study the situation there at the range, said many American investments in Mexico were acquired through corruption of officials of the Diaz Government which he said were their rightful owners.

We are urged to stand behind
President," said Wheeler. "I am willing to stand behind him if I could find out where he stands. Some one in Washington marked last week that to stand behind the President is a person who has St. Vitus' dance."

Dr. Hubert C. Herring, secretary of the Social Relations Department of the Congressional Churches of United States, who recently organized an unofficial committee of Americans which went to Mexico to study the situation there at the range, said many American investments in Mexico were acquired through corruption of officials
of the Diaz Government which
he said were their rightful

Ministerial Alliance Favors
Suppression of Certain Publications.

A resolution endorsing the proposed suppression of certain art and sex story magazines, which have recently been offered for sale on the news stands was adopted today by the Ministerial Alliance, meeting at the Downtown Y. M. C.
A. Sixteenth and Locust streets.
Support was pledged to the Civic Union of St. Louis in its campaign to have the magazines suppressed as "obscene and salacious literature." The resolution held that suppression was "highly essential to the moral and spiritual well-being of the city."

A request for the names of the magazines was made, but Dr. Arthur H. Armstrong, executive secretary of the Ministerial Alliance, explained that publication of names would only serve to increase the circulation of the magazines and contrasted the fight against them.
He announced that a complete file of the periodicals was available to the ministers in his office.

The organization also endorsed the work of the Citizens' Smoke Abatement League.

executive board to appeal to Congress for a readjustment of freight rates on coal shipments from the central competitive field.

The United Mine Workers, in convention, approved a petition urging Congress to "investigate the relation of freight rate discrimination to the extent of depression of the bituminous industry of Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Illinois, and the ineffectiveness of existing law to afford relief."

The petition is an endorsement of President John L. Lewis' report a few days ago which declared discriminatory freight rates were stifling the industry in the states named.

The convention today completed its constitutional consideration, a high point of which was the defeat of an amendment to hold local union elections every two years instead of every year. It is now ready to take up discussion of wages and working conditions, from which will be formulated a policy to govern the scale committee when it meets the operators at Miami on Feb. 14, to negotiate a contract for the bituminous fields.

COUNTY COURT AND HIGHWAY ENGINEER IN POLITICAL ROW
Road Official Refuses to Discharge
Three Assistants as Ordered by Judges.

A political row between the three new members of the St.
Louis County Court and the County Highway Engineer's office came to the surface today with the demand of the County Court that Highway Engineer Jablonsky discharge three of his assistants, and Jablonsky's refusal to do so.

The three assistants are Frank Kattmann, Adolph Latzinger and Walter Eberwein. Kattmann gets $175 a month, the others $150.
Latzinger was an assistant highway engineer, but was fired by the old County Court to make a place for Kattmann. The other judges,
Gardner and Rott, were opposed to their new for abolition of Jablonsky's assistants. They told Jablonsky today that it was necessary to discharge his assistants as a retrenchment measure. Jablonsky retorted that he would not discharge his aids, insisting that as they were appointed by the old County Court, the new court had no jurisdiction.

The County Counselor has been requested to prepare an opinion.

Ice Field Stop Dog Derby.
By Associated Press.
POLAND, Me., Jan. 31.—The second heat of the New England sled dog derby was canceled this morning and the race was presented to Leonard Koppala, who won the first heat Friday. The warm weather and rain of the last two days covered the 25-mile course with ice, which made precarious footing for the dogs. Arthur Walter, who won the race last year, finished second, and Walter Channing of Boston was third.

CHAMPION BACKSTROKE SWIMMER DIES

Miss Sybil Bauer Held All World Records in Women's Class—111 92 Days.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—Sybil Bauer, 23-year-old holder of all world's backstroke swimming records in the women's class, died at Michael Reese Hospital early today following an illness that developed last winter.

Miss Bauer had been in the hospital for 92 days, critically ill, but news of her death came as a shock, as recent reports had noted an improvement in her condition. At her bedside were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bauer, her two brothers, Valentine and George Bauer; her sister, Dorothy; and Edward Sullivan, New York newspaper man, whom she was to have married in June.

Miss Bauer held 23 world's backstroke records in all distances from the 100-meter to the quarter-mile event. Her victories included the 1924 Olympic games backstroke championship.

Eight Years in Competition.
Despite her comparative youth, Miss Bauer had been engaged in aquatic competition for nearly eight years. She first took to the water when she was 15 years old, a student in high school. Her career ran concurrent with that of another great Chicago water star, Johnny Weissmuller.

Both won many tank victories under the colors of the Illinois Athletic Club. Leaving high school, Miss Bauer continued perfecting her backstroke skill at Northwestern University, where she won her letter. She missed her degree of Bachelor of Arts at Northwestern by one term, having been unable because of her illness to complete her final year.

Miss Bauer's last competition was at St. Augustine, Fla., last February. She won the 100-meter backstroke there in one minute and 15 seconds, which was four-fifths of a second slower than her world's record, made in 1924 at Loyola University, Chicago.

Broke Record in 1922.
Two years before the St. Augustine competition, Miss Bauer, swimming at Miami, established a world's mark in the 200-meter backstroke, her time being three minutes, three and four-fifths seconds. At Bermuda in 1922, the swimmer, who was then in her teens, backstroked the 400 meters in six minutes, 24 and four-fifths seconds, a record that has never been equaled by a woman.

Friends said that the illness that cost her life dated from the St. Augustine competition. At Northwestern University Miss Bauer was president of the woman's athletic association and was a member of the Northwestern Student Council. She was active in many campus activities and also played on the university's girls' hockey team. Her sorority was Gamma Phi Beta.

Despite her illness, Miss Bauer had gone forward with plans for her wedding in June. Recently her sorority sisters of Northwestern had been visiting her in the hospital, assisting in the gathering of her hope chest.

Miss Bauer was born in Chicago in September, 1903. Burial will be in Chicago.

W. A. MOELLMAN FUNERAL
Former City Councilman Will Be Buried Tomorrow.

The funeral of William A. Moellman, 66 years old, of 2424 Louisiana avenue, a member of the old City Council during the first term of Mayor Rolla Wells, who died of hardening of the arteries and gangrene at Lakeran hospital Saturday, will be at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow from an undertaking establishment at 2023 Cherokee street. Burial will be in Lake Charles Cemetery.

Mr. Moellman, who had been ill for several months, was born in Washington County, Ill., and entered business in St. Louis in 1883 with the P. H. Krenning & Son Wholesale Grocery Co. In 1902 he joined the Nelson Distilling Co. and soon became its president, but retired in 1915 and took up insurance work with the New York Life Insurance Co. until two years ago. He belonged to five Masonic organizations. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Olga Ekelman Moellman; a daughter, Miss Olga Moellman; and two sons, William H. and August H. Moellman.

GANGSTER FIGHTS POLICEMAN
Caught After Chase, Frank Agrusa, 34-year-old, returned to Hospital. Lieutenant Aylward and Patrolman Trunkler in a police automobile, joining two motorcycle policemen in circuitous chase of a speeding sedan at Eighth and Biddle streets yesterday, halted the sedan at Broadway and Cass avenues.

Frank Agrusa, 34 years old, a wounded belligerent in the recent "broken Italian gang war," leaped out and started to strike Patrolman Trunkler, a mistake for the effect of which Agrusa was treated later at City Hospital. Illinois license plates were found concealed in the machine. Missouri license plates on the car had been issued to Joseph Orlando, who was in an automobile with Caesar Cipriano and Mansueto, killed, after visiting Agrusa in a hospital when he was recovering from a bullet wound. Agrusa and his companion, Sam Vitale, were held for investigation.

Scarcity of direct sunlight dangerous bence babies need Cod-Liver Oil

Babies' bones and teeth cannot grow normally without the beneficial influence of sunlight, or its substitute Vitamin D. But it is almost impossible for an infant to get enough direct sunlight. Even window-glass and clothing filter out the helpful rays. To avoid damage, or to repair it if begun, baby doctors and health clinics insist that all infants get good cod-liver oil regularly. Resistance to disease also is built up by good cod-liver oil. It helps to keep children healthy and aids them to grow normally.

The unusual effectiveness of Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil is due to its high vitamin content. Its health-promoting elements have been so skillfully preserved that small doses, taken regularly, are adequate.

"Over a year ago my health got so bad I had to give up my work as a coal miner. Had a very bad case of stomach trouble. I felt so bad that I could not eat anything and therefore, was too weak to work. I had been doctoring for a long time, but did not improve any. I finally started to take Milk's Emulsion and then went to a farm near here to work. I carried my Emulsion bottle with me all the time, took it regularly and gained in strength and flesh every day, and was able to work the entire season through on the farm, and now I am back at my work in the Greenridge Coal Mine.

"When I started taking Milk's Emulsion I was down to 115 pounds, but now I weigh 165, and am as strong and healthy as I ever was."—Lem Myers, Viridian, Ill.
Milk's Emulsion restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and purges. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food, thus building flesh and strength, which are Nature's only aids in curing all kinds of ailments and the effects of wasting diseases. This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Wonderful for weak, sickly children. No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milk's Emulsion. If not satisfied with results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. 4 PERSONS IN AUTO KIDNAPED AND ROBBED Lose $800 in Jewelry, $30 Cash and Machine on County Road.

Two men and two women, seated in an automobile in front of 126 Westgate avenue, University City, at 12:55 a. m. today, were captured by two robbers who took charge of their car and drove them to the Garden Theater on Olive Street road, there robbing them of jewelry valued at $800 and $30 cash.

Those in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Lisak of the Westgate avenue address, Miss Blanche Pearl of 4747A McMillan avenue and her fiance, Harry Kostman of 5048 Idaho avenue. After the hold-up the robber, who was joined by a third man in another automobile, took Kostman's machine and drove away.

Kostman, Miss Pearl and the Lisaks had met at a motion picture theater, and having driven to Westgate avenue were talking in the car about Kostman's approaching wedding to Miss Pearl. Their conversation was interrupted by two young men with revolvers who said: "Throw 'em up!"

One Robber Takes Wheel. One robber slid into the driver's seat next to Miss Pearl, with Kostman on the other side. He placed the revolver at the young woman's head. The other robber got into the rear seat with Mr. and Mrs. Lisak, placing his revolver against Lisak's side.

"The man in the seat with Miss Pearl and me drove my car," Kostman said today. "There wasn't any talking. We were too frightened. The robbers talked in good English for a few minutes and then used Polish to discuss the route we were taking. I understand Polish. "When we got to the Garden Theater they ordered us out. They took my fiancee's diamond ring, which cost me $150, and my gold watch which cost $150. I asked them not to take the watch as it was a present from my mother. They jerked it off the chain and told me to shut up. They also took $32 from me, $5 from Miss Pearl and $12 from Lisak. Then they warned us not to look back, they drove away in my car.

Third Man Followed in Car. "I saw a third man in a small touring car. He had followed us, I think."

Kostman's automobile was later found abandoned at Partridge and Lester avenue, St. Louis County.

WOMAN SAYS SHE HAS NO MONEY, ROBBER RUNS AWAY. One Man Has Field Up at Kingshighway and Penrose; Drives Losses $17.

Mrs. Louise T. Thornton of 2216A South Grand boulevard, was held up by a man in a red touring car, 12:29 a. m. today as she drove into a garage behind 5319 Hummer street. "I want your money," the man said, brandishing a revolver. "I have no money," Mrs. Thornton replied. All right, then," said the robber. "Good night." He ran away.

Two men held her and one of the Peoples Motorbus Co. at the Kingshighway, Penrose and Penrose avenue terminals last night, taking $17 from the driver, Wallace Shatten.

Louis Hampton, 1125 South Tenth street, was robbed of $8 by two men in front of 1012 E. Chestnut Charles Barris, 1214 North 21st street, was robbed of $2 and two watches, by three Negroes at Twelfth-second and Morgan street. Morris Perkins, 2224 Washington boulevard, was robbed of his overcoat at Ninth and Market streets by two men who said they had a customer for an overcoat down the street.

HUSBAND HELD FOR SHOOTING

WIFE RELEASED ON BOND. John Iselhardt Jr. of Belleville, says he Wounded Himself; Officers Can't Find Revolver.

John Iselhardt Jr. of Belleville, who is held under bond of $5000 on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon as a result of the shooting of his wife, Mrs. Ethel Riggs Iselhardt, has been released from the St. Clair County jail on a bond by his father, John Iselhardt Sr., owner of the Southern Boiler Works in Belleville.

Mrs. Iselhardt is reported improving in St. Vincent's Hospital. She declares her husband shot her during a quarrel. Iselhardt maintains that his wife shot herself. The warrant against Iselhardt was sworn out by State's Attorney Landauer in Justice Huchings' Court. The preliminary hearing will be held Feb. 3. Efforts to find the revolver with which the woman was shot and which Iselhardt states he threw in an out-house have been futile.

WOMAN ASSAULTED ON STREET

Mrs. Mary Mantia, 23 years old, of 915A Cass avenue, found by police in a hallway near 1218 Carr street at 12:45 p. m. yesterday, suffering from bruises on the face and neck, said she had been assaulted by a Negro as she was passing an alley on Carr street, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets. She was treated at City Hospital and taken home.

Nine suspects have been arrested but none identified. Mrs. Mantia related she had been visiting at 1428 West street and started home alone shortly after midnight. Just before she was assaulted, she said, she noticed a Negro couple following her. She said robbery was apparently the motive although she lost nothing.

COUNTY MAN WOUNDED IN ROW OVER ROADWAY

Thigh by His Neighbor,
George Geitz.

Ill feeling among neighbors over use of a roadway at Woodland, near Jennings, led to the shooting yesterday afternoon of William A. O'Connell, 31 years old, a stationary engineer, of 272 E. Elliot avenue, by George Geitz, 25, a University City park laborer, of Scott avenue, Woodland. O'Connell is under detention at City Hospital, with a bullet wound in the left thigh, and Geitz is held at Clayton jail.

Use of an extension of a road leading from the Geitz home to Scott avenue by neighbors brought objections from Geitz, and they retaliated, he said, by closing one end, so as to make his access to the street difficult. Among the neighbors involved was the wife of the adjoining place, Mrs. Elizabeth Berry, mother of O'Connell. Geitz also has complained about boys of the neighborhood spoiling his lawn.

O'Connell went to the Geitz home yesterday to discuss the matter and, according to Geitz, pushed Mrs. Geitz. He was told by Geitz to go away, but returned with his mother and a group of relatives. After being ordered away, the group started to break in a door. Geitz declared, whereupon he fired one shot from his .38-caliber revolver through a window pane with the intention of frightening the unwanted visitors. The bullet, however, struck O'Connell.

Two brothers and a sister of O'Connell, who accompanied him to a physician's office, told the police the quarrel was over the roadway. Geitz surrendered to a Justice of the Peace of the vicinity within three hours after the shooting.

Man Shot by Neighbor in Row Over Load of Coal.

Christ Thirstrup, 33 years old, of 6415 Wade avenue was shot in the left leg last night by his neighbor, Russell Fletcher, 26, of 6423 Wade avenue. Fletcher told police he shot Thirstrup after Thirstrup, who had been drinking, pushed into his home, abusing him for not removing a load of coal from the street in front of his home.

U. S. LEVIES TAX OF $1700
ON W. C. GOSHORN ESTATE

Made on Unreported Income for 1913-24-25 of Former Dry
Agents' Chief.

A Federal income tax assessment of $1700 has been made against the estate of the late William C. Goshorn of Belleflower, Mo., former group chief of prohibition agents in St. Louis, who died suddenly at his home last June, following publication of the facts concerning a gift to him of furniture worth $385 by a local saloonkeeper.

At the time of his death, Goshorn and his activities were under investigation by the Intelligence Unit of the Internal Revenue Department. Shortly before he had made an amended income tax return for 1923, paying $1000 to the Collector of Revenue and stating he had made a considerable profit trading in grain but was ignorant that such income was taxable.

The assessment just made is on unreported income for the years 1923-24-25, which the Government says was approximately $50,000.

MRS. HELEN W. YOUNKER DIES

St. Louis Resident Succumbs in Paris After Operation.

Word was received here yesterday of the death of Mrs. Helen W. Younker, Saturday, in Paris. Mrs. Younker, who was 52 years old, died of meningitis which developed after a mastoid condition. An operation was resorted to, but the infection had already spread.

Mrs. Younker, who was the widow of Paul Younker, had been in Europe for about two years, spending a good part of her time in Paris, and had planned to return to St. Louis in March. Her brother, Dr. Meyer Wiener, sailed Saturday after a cable telling of her condition, had been received and was at sea when word of her death was received. He will proceed to Paris and return with the body.

Besides Dr. Wiener, Mrs. Younker is survived by her mother, Mrs. Julia M. Wiener, of the Buckingham Hotel, and a sister, Mrs. Sarah Lowenhaupt, of 101 Arundel place. The funeral will be held in St. Louis.

BURGLAR ATTACKS WOMAN

Mrs. Agnes Mittracker Says Provoker Threatened Her With Razor.

Mrs. Agnes Mittracker, 25 years old, of 2220 Dickson street, called police to her home at 11 o'clock last night and reported having been assaulted by a man who had entered the residence through a kitchen window while her husband was at a nearby drug store.

Mrs. Mittracker said she and her two children had retired. The only light was the glow of a stove in the kitchen. As the man entered through a kitchen window, she said, he threw water on the embers in the stove. She saw him ransack a dresser drawer. She screamed, she said, and the man drew a razor.

$100,000 SAVED IN COMMUNITY FUND CAMPAIGN COST

Administration and Collection of $1,644,000 Is Only 8.3 Per Cent; 42,000 More Donors This Year.

ENDOWMENTS ARE THUS INCREASED

Fourteen Per Cent More Cash Obtained Than for Last Year, General Chairman Childress Reports.

There was a saving of at least $100,000 in the campaign for 1927 funds for 50 charitable and philanthropic agencies through the unified appeal of the Community Fund, over what the cost might have been if individual campaigns for money were conducted, the annual meeting of the Community Fund was told today in the report of General Chairman L. Wade Childress.

The amount raised for the 1927 work was $1,644,000. Cost of administration and the campaign was 8.3 per cent of this, or $136,452, whereas the cost of financing member organizations separately would have been about twice that much. Administration portion of the fund expense was 3.3 per cent, or $53,227.

Fourteen per cent more money was raised than in the campaign for 1926, the report pointed out, and there were 42,000 more donors.

Agency Finances Improved.

Finances of member agencies have been improved by additional endowments, increased attention to payment for services by those able to pay, and adoption of the principle that other communities shall pay whenever possible for services rendered their citizens. Three cardinal points of Community Fund work have been lived up to, Childress said in his report, which was read by Second Vice Chairman W. H. Henly, effective financial position and knit together internally, better than ever before.

Elwood Street, director of the fund, in an address, declared that office management, the secretarial staff, research work and budgeting of the member agencies would be improved during the coming year, and that over all will be "grit and stick-to-itiveness representative of the campaign for 1927."

Division Unity Sought.

"This should be a unified campaign, with all divisions carefully co-ordinated through frequent meetings of campaign committees, a campaign with central control; all activities carefully planned and scheduled, with an extensive prospect list prepared on the most accurate and up-to-date basis possible; and a force of volunteer solicitors carefully selected and thoroughly trained, animated with a renewed sense of the high responsibility which is theirs," Street continued.

He said the fund had raised this way on raising for 1926 from $6 to 7 per cent more than was raised for 1925, or from $1,825,000 to $1,850,000, which would put St. Louis close to where it should be among American cities in giving.

We shall need a careful method of collection. This will be done by bills with a selling quality, by better, by telephone and by personal follow-up. Through this we hope to collect every possible penny of the golden shower we hope will fall upon the campaign organization. There is a careful financial policy of giving money not only under the guidance of statement by organizations, of carefully watching every item of expenditures of investing all possible funds until needed so that the greatest possible income in interest may be secured. From the supply funds may be drawn out by the 50 organizations which make the Community Fund as a whole.

Water might be drawn from a reservoir in the desert for irrigation. This golden shower thus impounded will indeed water the fields of life in our community, and will bring health, happiness, well-being and a crop of good citizens such as our community never has known.

SACASA SAYS U. S. MARINES WILL HAVE TO KILL FOR DIAZ

Nicaraguan Liberal Leader Declares American Policy of Obstructing His Troops Can Lead Only to Bloodshed.

By the Associated Press.
PUERTO CABEZAS, Nicaragua, Jan. 31.—Dr. Juan Sacasa, head of the Liberal Government here, in a statement to the Associated Press today declared that if the United States Marines did not "suspend hostilities against the Liberals" the time would come when the Marines would have to open fire against the Liberals and kill hundreds of Nicaraguan citizens to support Diaz, as in 1912.

Gen. Diaz heads the Conservative Government at Managua which has been recognized by the United States.

Declaring that the Liberals had inflicted decisive defeats on the Conservatives, Dr. Sacasa said: "My forces would control the country if the Marines were not engaged in military operations against us. If we were not suffering the effects of a severe blockade preventing the transport of provisions and even Red Cross supplies for our army, and if the Marines did not occupy the towns we are about to capture."

"Should the Marines suspend hostilities against the Liberals, the Diaz Government could not last long. I have done everything possible to avoid conflict with the Marines despite the outrages against us, such as the seizure of arms at Puerto Cabezas, which were ultimately returned, and the seizure of 2,000,000 cartridges and about 700 rifles on the Grande River, which were dumped into the river."

Despite these hostilities, the Liberal army advances, routing the enemy in several places in the interior of the republic and equipping themselves with arms captured from the enemy. In due course, the Marines will have to open fire against the Liberals and kill hundreds of Nicaraguan citizens to support Diaz as in 1912."

It was, he added, the "inalienable and sacred right of the Nicaraguan people to settle their internal difficulties by themselves." As for himself, he was always ready to mediate and would "never be an obstacle to a real honorable peace."

LA GUARDIA ASSAILS PLAN TO PHOTOGRAPH BAR SCENES

Writes Secretary Mellon Objecting to Extension of Government Espionage System.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Renewing his attack on prohibition "under-cover" enforcement work, Representative La Guardia (Rep.) of New York wrote Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today that a plan of Chester P. Mills, New York City administrator, to photograph the customers in "speak-easies" was an extension of an "espionage system" by the Government.

La Guardia said Mills had declared he would take photographs to obtain evidence that liquor was sold, to show patrons in the act of drinking, and to shame men for peering through places.

La Guardia said "it is needless to say that a photograph of a glass or bottle containing liquid is no proof that such liquid is an intoxicating beverage. And Mills will find it difficult to get patrons to hold the pose of drinking while the 'under cover' men prepare the flash."

MOSCOW REDS ISSUE MANIFESTO AGAINST AMERICA

Third International Declares U. S. by Military Threat, Tries to Control Mexican Oil Fields.

"WHOLE WORLD LAUGHS AT KELLOGG"

Since Founding, Declares Decree, International Has Proclaimed Necessity of War Against Capitalists.

By the Associated Press.
MOSCOW, Jan. 31.—An appeal to the proletariat of the world to help the Latin-Americans save themselves from "enslavement" through the "imperialistic ambitions" of the United States is made in a proclamation by the Third, or Communist, International with headquarters in Moscow.

Addressed to "the workers and peasants of the oppressed nations of the world," the proclamation accuses the United States of designs to "transform Latin-America into an American colony."

It charges that the United States, by means of military threat, is trying to gain control of Mexico's valuable oil fields for American capitalists and that it is seeking domination in Panama and Peru.

"Since its foundation," the manifesto states, "the Third International has proclaimed the necessity of war against the insolent and mightiest capitalist regime and imperialism of the United States."

Ever since the day of its foundation, the Third International invites all anti-imperialist forces to support the people of Nicaragua in their struggle against the designs of American imperialism.

"World Laughing at Kellogg."

"The American Secretary of State, finding no better excuse for sending battleships to Nicaragua, has ordered a pilot maneuver from the Fascist bandits of Lithuania, Bulgaria and other countries and announced that it was the Bolshevik danger that caused American intervention in Central America."

The proclamation also says: "The whole world is laughing at Mr. Kellogg's attempts to distract attention from the real motive of American intervention in Central America, namely, the desire to build a second canal, in Nicaragua, the proclamation says:

"That is why the mask has been thrown off and the country occupied under the pretense of protecting the lives and property of American citizens."

"Robbing People of Independence."

The proclamation says the United States "wants to choke Nicaragua, to subjugate all the Latin countries of Central America and transform Latin-America into an American colony."

The International accuses American capitalists of exploiting the Latin-American countries, robbing the people of their independence and gradually edging out England from those countries, seizing all their natural wealth, industries and transport.

The International is closely identified with the Soviet Government, Joseph Stalin, who is virtually in control of the communist party in Russia, is a member of the International Presidium. Gregory Zinoviev was its president until expelled from the office last year.

Trotsky, Kamenoff and other members of the left wing also had their difficulties with the International and were demoted from high positions in this labor organization which has affiliations in other countries. The International was founded in 1919.

Recently Premier Rykoff declared that the Soviet Government would not allow any interference in the internal or foreign policy of the United States, and added: "I will dismiss any Government functionary who attempts to break this rule."

About the same time Maxim Litvinoff, acting Foreign Minister, characterized as "ridiculous" statements relative to communist plots and intrigues in the Latin-American countries.

CAROL FORGIVEN BY WIFE, OLD TUTOR SAYS

Princess Helen and Ex-Crown Prince of Rumania Reported Reconciled.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Jan. 31.—Former Crown Prince Carol of Rumania, his affair with Mme. Magda Lupescu over, is ready to return to his wife, Princess Helen, and their son, Prince Michael, the heir apparent, according to Prof. Nicolas Jorga, his former tutor. At Carol's home in Neuilly, however, the usual secrecy is maintained.

Asked today regarding a report that Carol was preparing to proceed to Rapallo, Italy, where Princess Helen recently went with her son, Prof. Jorga said: "Helen has forgiven everything and Carol is reconciled to return to his wife and child. Carol's return to live under the same roof with his lawful wife is an essential condition of my supporting him to ascend the throne of his father."

By the Associated Press.
FLORENCE, Italy, Jan. 31.—Princess Helen expects to depart for Rumania Saturday. Her young son, Prince Michael, Rumanian heir apparent, it is understood, will stay for a time at Rapallo for his health.

Nothing is known here regarding the possibility of her meeting Carol at Rapallo. She and her son have been the guests of her mother, the former Queen Sophia of Greece.

MONTANANS CONDEMN WALSH FOR NOT CHALLENGING M'ADOO

Butte Democratic Club Tells Senator to Wake Up and Forget About Oil.

By the Associated Press.
BUTTE, Mont., Jan. 31.—The Silver Bow Democratic Club of Butte has adopted a resolution for transmission to Senator Thomas J. Walsh (Dem.) of Montana, expressing disapproval because none of the Montana delegation in Congress challenged W. G. McAdoo's recent reference at Toledo to New York, Maryland and Montana as "nullification" because of the repeal of the State prohibition laws. "After commenting on replies to McAdoo from Maryland and New York Senators," the club statement said, "our State was left like a deserted child by its pseudo representatives, and we feel that our delinquent representatives should be chided for their failure. Resolved, That our representatives, by telegraph, be requested to wake up and get busy in the interests of Montana and to forget Teapot Dome and Daugherty."

SOCIALISTS GAIN IN GERMANY

Elect 18 Members of Thuringian Landtag; Nationalists Lose.

By the Associated Press.
WEIMAR, Germany, Jan. 31.—A decided move toward the left is shown in the returns from the Thuringian State elections. This is regarded as of especial interest, following President von Hindenburg's refusal to appoint Walter Graf, Thuringian Nationalist member of the Reichstag and advocate of a monarchistic dictatorship, as a member of the new Federal Cabinet. The Socialists and communists made gains in the Thuringian Landtag, while the Nationalists lost. Of the 56 seats in the Landtag the Socialists will have 18 and the communists 5, thus making the proportion of labor to bourgeois seats, 46.5 against 53.5 per cent. The bourgeois members, however, will include two Democrats who, in view of their party's opposition to the Federal Cabinet, probably will join the Socialists and communists in the opposition, thereby equally dividing the House.

In the previous Landtag the proportion of bourgeois seats was 53.5 to 41.7 for the Socialists and communists.

MEXICO ORDERS JALISCO PRIESTS TO REPORT DAILY

Instruction Said to Have Been Issued Because of "Catholic Agitation" in That State.

80 PRIESTS FREED FROM ARMY PRISON

District Court in Capital Refuses Injunction to Oil Men Because Laws Meet Public Need.

By the Associated Press.
MEXICO CITY, Jan. 31.—While it is learned here that all Catholic priests of the State of Jalisco have been notified to report daily to the Department of Interior in Mexico City after Feb. 1, so far as known priests in other states will not be molested.

Similar orders were given to the priests of the State of Durango a few weeks ago.

Special dispatches from Guadalajara, telling of the order to the Jalisco priests, say the action was taken because of "Catholic agitation" in that state.

About 80 Catholic priests, most of them from the State of Durango, have been released from the Santiago military prison in Mexico City, where they have been confined on suspicion of seditious activities.

Jalisco Rebels Routed.

After a sharp fight, says a report to the War Department from Gen. Ferrelas, commander in Jalisco, the rebellion there has received its death blow.

The report says a large group of rebels commanded by Fortino Sanchez was overtaken by Federal soldiers at Ocampo, when a fight lasting several hours developed. The rebels fled and were pursued by the Federal forces. Sanchez was discovered among the dead.

Negotiations for submission of the rebellious Yaqui Indians in the State of Sonora have failed. The Government, therefore, has decided to continue to blockade their strongholds. Though it will not surrender, the Yaquis refuse to deliver up their arms and demand continuance of the subsidy which the Government gave them before they began their uprising last summer.

Oil Injunction Refused.

The Aguilera Oil Co. and its four subsidiaries have been unable to obtain an amparo injunction against the operation of the new petroleum laws in the First District Court of Mexico City.

The court decided that a "definite amparo" could not be granted because the laws were issued in response to the public need and constitute a part of the economic and political structure of the country. Consequently, the court held, society and state were interested in the application of the laws which could not be restrained, especially when, as in the present case, restriction would affect the main source of the wealth of the republic.

A writ was granted in a similar case in another district last week. The situation awaits clarification by the Supreme Court.

A mass meeting of workmen yesterday under the auspices of the Regional Confederation of Labor, denounced "American imperialism" and urged the workmen of the United States and other countries "to stand united against United States capitalism in its imperialistic Latin-American program."

Pani on Way to Los Angeles.

Alberto J. Pani, whose resignation as Secretary of the Treasury was reported by El Universal, is on his way to Los Angeles. Political circles think he will be appointed Minister to France, succeeding Alfonso Reyes, who is expected to be transferred to Spain.

It is assumed everywhere that Senor Pani actually has resigned, but the Government is withholding official announcement. The retirement of Senor Pani from the finance post is popularly attributed to the influence of Luis Morones, Minister of Industry, Commerce and Labor. Pani opposed some of Morones' policies, particularly with respect to the labor movement.

Octavio Dubois, subsecretary of Finance, will be acting minister for the time being.

Mad Carlotta's Estate $120,000.

By the Associated Press.
BRUSSELS, Jan. 31.—The estate of the former Empress Carlotta, widow of Maximilian, one time empress of Mexico, will not be as large as expected. It was estimated after her death, Jan. 17, that her estate was worth about $2,000,000. This has now dwindled to about $120,000, as a result of her inheritance taxes and other charges. The Belgian Agency understands so that each of the six heirs will receive $120,000 each.

REVOCATION OF TELEPHONE RATES EXTENSION SOUGHT

City Requests Public Service Commission to Void Order Pending Court Ruling.

The City Law Department today requested the State Public Service Commission, by telegraph, to revoke the commission's order of Saturday, extending the schedule of increased rates for business telephones in St. Louis, pending decision by the State Supreme Court of the city's appeal from the increase.

Contending that the new order was made without a public hearing and without regard to pendency of the case in the Supreme Court, the city asks a rehearing on the extension order.

The period for the increase, which amounts to $894,000 a year, was to have expired today, but the commission continued it until the courts can settle the appeal. There is another suit pending in the Supreme Court which questions the commission's right to extend a schedule while an appeal is in court.

MIRACLE NEARLY RUINS RANCH

Of Making Many Books

Being Disillusioned

As to the matter of being disillusioned—a state much affected by writers of the moment—can it not be said truthfully that the only disillusioned person is a dead one? Is not the effective world of everyone very largely a subjective construction from objective data little understood—a world that coincides roughly with the effective worlds of other men only because the minds of men are similar? And if this be true, who does not live by virtue of illusions? Is it not true that the so-called "disillusioned man" is merely one who, through complex mental processes or the weakened functioning of his physical apparatus, or both, has exchanged his pleasing illusions for unpleasant ones? And if every man who builds such an effective world, out of data little understood, in keeping with his physical, temperamental and intellectual peculiarities, who is the better architect—he who builds a glorious world or he who builds a sordid one? And can anyone believe, after careful thought, that the cynical view of the world is any nearer the livable truth than is the rozier view of the "unso-phisticated"?

Pamphlet Poets

THE firm of Simon & Schuster is issuing representative selections from various American poets in its "Pamphlet Poets" series, and the same is being done for British poets by a London firm whose representative on this side is Frederick A. Stokes. Selections from Poe, Whitman, Elinor Wylie, Nathalia Crane and Sandburg have already been issued. The most recent selections from Blake, Austin Dobson and Andrew Lang. The Dobson pamphlet comes among other memorable things, the exquisite little dramatic dialogue, "Goodnight, Babette." Though the Lang booklet reveals the distinguished critic at his poetical best, it could have been improved for this reader by the inclusion of a poem containing that gorgeous line through which the peacocks scream and strut. But the sonnet on a glorious world or he who builds a sordid one? And can anyone believe, after careful thought, that the cynical view of the world is any nearer the livable truth than is the rozier view of the "unso-phisticated"?

As one that for a weary space has lain, Lulled by the song of Circe and her wine, In gardens near the pale of Proserpine, Where Aegean isle forgets the plain, And only the low lutes of love complain, And only shadows of wan lovers pine; As such an one was glad to know Salt on his lips, and the large air again— So gladly from the songs of modern men turn and see the stars, and feel the free Shril wind beyond the close of heavy flowers, And through the music of the language they hear like Ocean on a western beach The surge and thunder of the Odyssey.

WILD HONEY. By Frederick N. Brown. (Doubtless, N. Brown is a little French café in the second act is very pretty. In between, from time to time, there is a series of tableaux which are exceedingly beautiful. There is far less nakedness on the stage than is usual in the Folies shows, on many occasions the producer going to the extreme of putting the chorus in tight-fitting costumes that perhaps there is to be a revival of that sort of thing. A host of song writers and composers are credited on the program with having written the words and music, but the latter, although useful, is never striking, and there is nothing in the show for the audience to go away humming. As a matter of fact, the twentieth edition of the Folies leaves the musical revue situation in St. Louis about where it was last week.

"Student Prince" as Tunes and Attraction as Ever. "THE STUDENT PRINCE," which spent three weeks here last season, has not worn out its welcome. It was routinely received at the Shubert-Rialto last night when the show was given a new lease of life by the replacement of the old-fashioned charm and sentiment of that play enriched by the melodies of Sigmund Romberg. There is no denying the appeal of "The Student Prince." The futile love of the heir-apparent to the throne of a mythical kingdom for a poor maid in the old alms house, which is the story of the play, is as old as time, but when Anthony Hope burst upon the world as a literary Warwick, and added to this several kilometers of gold, a covey of hoop skirts, three dozen bear skins, a lot of diamonds and, in the MIT Gross Niemi, a huffy princess, and you have concocted sure-fire entertainment.

TEXAS GIRL VIOLINIST. Barbara Lull Well Received by Sunday Audience at the Odéon. The thirteenth "Pop" concert of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra yesterday afternoon served as a medium for introducing Barbara Lull, a young Texas violinist with more than ordinary talents who played the second and third movements of Saint-Saens' B minor concerto.

Miss Lull disclosed a round, firm tone produced by smooth, classic bowing which was well received by the audience. In addition to her chief numbers she played Schubert's Wogenlied arranged by Mischa Elman and Gosses's Tambourine.

Striped of the orchestral numbers the two most satisfactory were "Chariots" rousing Spanish rhapsody and Johann Strauss' Artist's Life waltz. The latter number grows more youthful in every year and with the older Strauss waltzes will be surviving on concert programs when Schoenberg, Bartok, Ruggles and all are as little known as the comic musicians of Cyren the Persian.

BARTON'S DANCING FEATURES FOLLIES

Pretty Girls and Attractive Stage Pictures in Ziegfeld's Twentieth Offering.

WHAT with the movie producers offering fabulous salaries to the musical comedy comedians and the movie theaters putting on pretentious girl shows each week, Flo Ziegfeld, in the twentieth edition of his Follies, which came to the American Theater last night, is contenting himself with one funny man, about half the usual number of young women to be glorified and only a stage set or two which might be called gorgeous. But the funny man is really funny and the girls this year are unusually beautiful and the show, while far from being the best of Mr. Ziegfeld's offerings, is also far from being the worst. It is, in fact, pretty good eye and ear entertainment, with the eyes being largely in the majority.

James Barton is the comedian. Mr. Barton is, primarily, a dancer, and it is fairly late in the show before he starts his footwork, but once he does, there is no stopping him, or the audience either. In a Spanish dance with Ray Dooley, right at the end of the evening, Barton is a riot. Earlier in the show little Miss Dooley gives her usual spoiled child impersonations with a scene in a railway coach being a bit too long. Edna Leonard, a good rough sourette, makes several efforts to sing suggestive songs but only succeeds in being vulgar. Her singing of the Queen Elizabeth number is the only really objectionable spot in the entire show. As said above, the young women in the entertainment are more attractive than ever, and a newcomer, Polly Walker, who has a song or two, is the most pleasing girl Mr. Ziegfeld has gone to the pains to glorify in many years.

The finale of the first of the two acts with the chorus in magnificent feather costumes recalls the old days of Ziegfeld opulence and, as said above, the young women in the entertainment are more attractive than ever, and a newcomer, Polly Walker, who has a song or two, is the most pleasing girl Mr. Ziegfeld has gone to the pains to glorify in many years.

The Week's New Films

By NIE

IT is ridiculous, of course, to attempt to put oneself in the place of Corinne Griffith. Our styles of beauty are entirely different and also, we have no ermine coat, but had we been Miss Griffith in the picture, "The Lady in Ermine," which is at the Missouri right now, we would have let the wicked but handsome Austrian General shoot our insignificant-looking Italian husband and called it a good night's work. You see, Corinne was married to an officer in the Italian army, and when his regiment marched out of one door of his castle—this was back in 1810—the enemy marched right in by another entrance. Pretty bad intelligence service on both sides, when each army was supposed to be looking for the other. The commander of the Austrians was none other than our old friend, Francis X. Bushman, who can still give the latter-day run of young leading men cards and spades on screen acting. When Mr. Corinne, or what ever his name was, came back to the castle looking for his bride, Gen. Bushman orders him shot at the popular hour of sunrise. There is a catch to the order, however. If Corinne will dig up an ermine coat somewhere, put it on and visit old Gen. Bushman after midnight, there will be no shooting. When things look darkest, as they have a way of doing just before dawn, the General drops off into a drunken slumber and dreams that Corinne found an ermine coat. For that he pardons Mr. Corinne and marches away with the idea that he had had a very pleasant night. Corinne herself is as beautiful as ever in the picture. She has to be to get away with the most unbecoming head-dress we have ever seen worn on the screen. The stage show at the Missouri this week is a dandy.

They Still Prefer 'Em. ADOLPHE MENJOU'S true love was a blonde, and he married her, but to make sure that she was right, he let her get a divorce and then married a dark-haired girl. As the picture, "Blonde or Brunette," at the Ambassador, turns out, he was right the first time, and that is about all there is to the whole affair, but the clever screen work of Mr. Menjou makes it a pleasing and entertaining little film.

Kid Stuff. NONE of the kids who cheered "Jim, the Conqueror," at the St. Louis Theater yesterday, could understand the squeamishness of Elinor Fair concerning William Boyd. In this picture Boyd has a swell marcel and a Colie's frontier model, 45-caliber, single action. He plunks a guy in the gladiator with a peachy underhand drive (like Bill Hart's, only better), and that silly girl called him a murderer. But after he showed her what a really good guy he was, and what a varmint was the bloke he bumped off, and with self-defense a good excuse, what was the diff anyway, she says she'll marry him. And that proved that a fellow who starts out as a pampered idler will turn into a man if allowed to ride a pinto across 10,000,000 acres of mesquite.

EX-CHAMPION PEDESTRIAN DIES. O. L. Durgin Outwalked O'Leary and Weston in 1878. By the Associated Press. MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 31.—Orlando L. Durgin, 72 years old, former champion walker of the world, is dead.

He won his walking laurels in 1878 at the old Madison Square Garden in New York City, when he defeated a field of the great pedestrian stars of the day, including Dan O'Leary and Edward Payson Weston. A widow and three children survive.

Turkish Tabasco. THE entente cordial having been re-established by France and Turkey, Count Tolente, who is one of the wickedest and wealthiest noblemen in the latter benighted country, moved to the French Riviera to indulge in the little pleasures so common there. Providing himself with a magnificent villa, he set out to corner all the youth and beauty of France, and has pretty far succeeded until he stumbles across Anna Q. Nilsson, Anna already has a husband, one of those old-fashioned French men who wears suspenders and all that sort of thing, and the Count's money failed to interest her. Tolente pretends to garner her into his collection of beauties, anyway, but Anna drops him in his tracks.

THEODORE ROBERTS TOPS PROGRAM AT THE ORPHEUM

Screen and Stage Star Provides Only Real Entertainment on Week's Vaudeville Bill.

Theodore Roberts, beloved of stage and film by more than one generation of theatergoers, is finishing at the Orpheum Theater this week something he started about a year ago—presenting the gripping and dramatic sketch, "The Man Higher Up." The lines which attacked him at that time and came so near ending his days has left him temporarily with cane and crutch, but so powerful is his acting in this William C. De Mille play, that the audience would believe them part of the role if Mr. Roberts, in his curtain speech, didn't promise they would soon be discarded.

The less said about the rest of the week's bill the better—with the notable exception of the comedy afforded by Raymond Wilbert's golfing sketch, in which a lot of salary, etcetera, is wasted, not to mention excess baggage, on half a dozen young women who make up the "company." Ernest Hiatt seems about the most uninteresting monologue purveyor we've ever encountered, and that's saying something. Walter Tiso cracks whips and throws bouzoures in clever fashion; Green and Gale make miserable attempts to play ducky roles and the Red Follies in the Red Follies. The photoplay, "College Days," is a rather entertaining picture.

HEAR MANY TONGUES ON RADIO
Europeans Listen to German, English, Dutch and Spanish.
By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Jan. 31.—Wireless fans have excellent practice in languages as they listen to what the other waves are saying. This is one advantage they have over Americans.

Even with a two-tube set the French radio enthusiast can hear German, English, Dutch and Spanish spoken. With a larger outfit, a dozen other tongues come within hearing and he can listen to, even if he can't understand, the Russian news bulletins from Moscow. London is a favorite with all continental listeners in who delight in American dance music played by an orchestra in a well-known London hotel.

20-23 Wyatt Building.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—On July 1, 1927, Missouri will have an estimated population of 3,510,000, an increase of 12,000 since July 1, last year, the Commerce Department Census Bureau announced today.

The estimated population for the entire United States on July 1 will be 118,628,000, an increase of 1,492,000 over the estimated population last year, the announcement said. The computation for the country was based, in part, upon available data regarding births, deaths, immigration and emigration.

The population for the several states arrived at by distributing the total increase for the United States since 1920 on the basis of the distribution on the increase between 1910 and 1920, the years of the official census. There were no estimates, however, for those states which showed a decrease of population from 1910 to 1920.

The estimates for the states follow:

WHEN CHURCHILL GOT A STAG

Scottish Guide Employed Strategy as Chancellor Talked.
LONDON, Jan. 31.—This is told by a Scottish guide about Great Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, whom he led on a Highland jaunt: "Mr. Churchill was a very clever gentleman, a grand speaker, but rather heavy on his legs on the high hills. He was very anxious to see the cave, and I took him to the cave along the ridge and down into the corrie. I had a rifle with me, though I hoped the gentleman would be able to get a stag after he had seen the cave. Well, we got to the cave, but he was tired. He was not a good walker, and he was so tired that he was going back down the corrie and not back up the ridge. But I said that if he went down the corrie he could not get a stag, owing to the wind. He said he would not go up the ridge for all the stags in Crennagore. We started walking, and all the time I was just quietly walking up toward the ridge and he was so busy with his argument he was not noticing where he was going.
"When he had finished we were almost back on the ridge again. I just stopped and I said, 'Well, Mr. Churchill, just look and see where ye are.' And, oh, he was very merry, and he just laughed and laughed, and we got a stag, and he was very pleased, and I was very pleased. Oh, but he was a clever speaker... but rather heavy on his legs on the high hills."

TRY SKIDLESS RUBBER STREET

British Experiment With New Material for Pavements.
By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Streets and highways may be surfaced in some future day with soundless, durable rubber and the world's highway traffic allowed to proceed skidlessly through rubber-to-rubber contact.
A matter of fact report to the Commerce Department from a London observer notes that a 700-yard area of a rubber pavement, laid for tests in one of London's heaviest traffic streets, has withstood one month of wear and stress and dampness under English winter conditions without showing any signs of deterioration. A much longer time of experimentation, however, will be needed before the engineers and experts reach conclusions.

American makers of hard surface road materials need not be disturbed by the prospects, however, because the report adds that the rubber used in the test merely supplements ordinary materials in making a roadway. The test street is paved first with a concrete foundation, headed over with sand, and on the sand is laid rubber-topped brick, sealed with a rubber cement.

Finda Supposedly Extinct Tribes.
MOSCOW, Jan. 31.—Three supposedly extinct tribes have been discovered in North Karelia, north of Leningrad, by an expedition headed by Prof. Zolotarev of the Russian Academy of Sciences. Each of them—Vepce, Ijora and Vodi—numbers between 10,000 and 15,000, with a language resembling Finnish. They have the customs and traditions of a thousand years ago and still follow their pagan religion. Sleds are used, winter and summer, and black huts without chimneys are their homes. The Vodi have a memory of departed grandeur—a coat of arms for each family has been handed down for generations.

UNITARIAN PASTOR ATTACKS MISSOURI ANTI-EVOLUTION BILL
 Science Does Not Support an Irreligious View of the World, Dr. Dodson Declares.
 "Science does not support an irreligious view of the world," said the Rev. Dr. George R. Dodson, pastor of the Church of the Unity, preaching yesterday against the proposed Missouri anti-evolution law.

 "It is natural," he said, "that men who feel great values are threatened should attempt to protect them by law. But the proposed law, meant to protect spiritual interest, would really set them back. A better understanding of the situation is needed. The doctrine of evolution is no more incompatible with Christianity than is the Copernican theory of the universe, which has supplanted the Ptolemaic theory that was once upheld in the name of religion. A great many people have found to their delight that evolution is capable of a religious interpretation. It is regarded by them as God's method in creation."

Copyright, 1927, by E. Roy Alexander. Used as the late Willie Egan St. Louis gang fame, had in Lieutenant "Dinky" Colbeck, under as resourceful and cunning as he, so Charles Birger, picturesque Williamson, Co. gang chief, had in Art Newman, the former East Side hotel proprietor, an associate who was his in ready wit, cold nerve, and ability with pistol and machine gun.

A gambler and bootlegger, had shot his way out of many corners, Newman found himself in a close race with Birger because of his enmities with the Sheltons, brothers of Birger, one day in St. Louis, on the way to Quincy for mail robbery, Newman and Birger as chief Government witnesses.

Newman's Personality.

It was a foregone conclusion when Newman found the Sheltons were his enemies and not his friends, he should line up with Birger and take a determined offense against the three brothers.

Written in every line of his deeply marked face, in his sharply cut chin, in his keen, rowed eyes. He is below medium height, but his chest is broad and deep, for his size, his shoulders are straight and well muscled, his movements are quick and elusive. He is 28 years old.

Pleasant fellow, with a ready grin, but a man with a quick temper and unflinching courage. The reputation he has earned.

"It's a funny thing to remember," Newman began, "but it was Carl Shelton that introduced me to Charles Birger, one day in St. Louis, at the Oklawaha street market at Nineteenth street. I wasn't awfully long after that until me and Charlie were gunning for Carl and gaining hard."

"I think the first time I met Carl was May 24, 1924, the day at the shooting of S. Glenn Young, a wife in the Oklawaha Bottoms. Carl and I were there, and he came to me at the Arlington hotel at Second and Missouri, running the place at the time. I was a little bootlegger, and I was on the side, and a friend of mine, Roy Shaw, brought me in."

"Art," he said, "here are three class boys. They're in a hot spot now and they're broke. You take care of them."

"Then a couple of days before Hank's place—the Southern—and I knew they were broke, so I was glad to help them."

"Red Glenn's Raiders."

Newman laid his opposition to the fact that the law was even in making an offensive on East St. Louis and those joints, under the leadership of the Glenn Young it had taken the bootlegging in Williamson, along with others in St. Louis.

INSIDE STORIES OF THE GANG WAR IN SOUTHERN ILLINOIS

Told to the Post-Dispatch by "Art" Newman, Chief Lieutenant of Charlie Birger
How the Sheltons Shot Glenn Young and His Wife in the Okaw River Bottoms

ROBBERY OF U. S. MAIL AT COLLINSVILLE WAS ORIGIN OF BLOOD FEUD

Unwillingness of Some to Take Part in Crime for Which Sheltons Go on Trial Today Split Gang Into Two Factions to War Upon Each Other.

"The war is over," says Art Newman, "and I don't mind telling what I know about it. I'm out of it now and I'm going to quit the country as soon as I get through with the trial at Quincy."

The "war" between the Birger and Shelton gangs has been going on for nearly two years and peace officers of Williamson, Franklin and Saline Counties, in Southern Illinois, have been powerless to interfere. Even the Governor of the state has admitted his inability—if not unwillingness—to take a hand on the side of law and order.

Assassinations and the bombing and burning of roadhouses have been numerous and the last episode was the mysterious disappearance of a road patrol officer and his wife, who are believed to have been murdered because of what they knew.

Originally the Sheltons and the Birger outfit were one, engaged in run running and bootlegging, levying tribute on moonshiners, sticking up gambling houses, operating slot machine concessions and occasionally "lifting" a payroll.

Newman declares that the split came when he refused to go into the Collinsville mail robbery with the Sheltons, and the breach developed into a blood feud when the Sheltons finally realized his information might send them to the penitentiary for long terms, and they decided to kill him to preserve their liberty.

Newman's stories, supplemented by his two close pals, Freddie Wooten and Connie Ritter, were given to Post-Dispatch reporters in a series of long talks which lasted many hours.

"These interviews took place at different houses in several of the small towns in the feud country, which by agreement, are not revealed, and where the narrators, armed with automatics and with themselves temporarily safe from the constant danger of being 'bumped' by friends of the Sheltons.

UST as the late Willie Egan of St. Louis gang fame, had in his "Lieutenant" "Dinky" Colbeck, a leader as resourceful and courageous as he, so Charlie Birger, the picturesque Williamson County gang chief, had in Art Newman, the former East Side hotel proprietor, an associate who was his peer in ready wit, cold nerve, and ability with pistol and machine gun.

A gambler and bootlegger, who had shot his way out of many bad corners, Newman found common cause with Birger because of mutual enmities with the Shelton brothers of East St. Louis, on trial at Quincy for mail robbery with Newman and Birger as chief Government witnesses.

Newman's Personality.

"It was a foregone conclusion that when Newman found the Shelton boys were his enemies and not his friends, he should line up with Birger and take a determined offensive against the three brothers. Action is written in every line of his deeply marked face, in his firm, sharply cut chin, in his keen, narrow eyes. He is below medium height, but his chest is broad and deep, for his shoulders are straight and well muscled, and his movements are quick and decisive. He is 28 years old.

A pleasant fellow, with a ready genuine smile, but a man with a quick temper and unfailing courage. That reputation he has earned.

"It's a funny thing to recall," Newman began, "but it was Carl Shelton that introduced me to Charlie Birger, one day in Shelton's saloon at Nineteenth street and Market avenue, in East St. Louis.

I wasn't awfully long after that until me and Charlie were gunning for Carl, and gunning hard.

"I think the first time I met Carl was May 24, 1924, the day after shooting of S. Glenn Young and wife in the Okaw bottoms. Carl and his two brothers, Earl and Fred, came to me at the Arlington at Second and Missouri. I was running the place at the time doing a little bootlegging and hanging on the side, and a friend of mine, Roy Shaw, brought them in."

"He said, 'There are three of you boys. They're in a little bit of a fix. They're broke. They want some day to lead a hard-riding campaign against them in their own town, and that the best hope of heading him off was to encourage antiklan gunmen, like the Sheltons, to greater activity.

"Just as soon as the Sheltons lit in my place they told me about firing on Young and his wife," Newman continued. "Young had left Herrin to go to East St. Louis and even before he took out of Herrin that peckered began to brag.

"He stood on the running board of his Lincoln in Herrin and when a crowd gathered around, he said: 'Boys, I'm going up to East St. Louis now. We've cleaned up Willie Egan in East St. Louis, re-hanson County. Watch what we do in East St. Louis."

"The Sheltons heard him make that foolish crack, they told me, and they took out after his car. They'd planned to kill him that day, anyhow.

"Young hit up a pretty hot pace with his Lincoln and the Shelton boys had a hard time keeping up with them in the Dodge they had. Besides the three brothers, Charlie Briggs, that was killed later, and Jack Skelcher, that didn't have as much to live at the time, were along in the machine.

"'Bump Off' That Failed.

"Carl told me they almost bumped the Dodge up after the Lincoln, but finally they caught up with the Youngs in the Okaw bottoms, a lonely, unpaved stretch of road this side of Okawville. They pulled up alongside the Lincoln with Bernie Briggs driving the Dodge, and opened up on Young and his wife with pistols and a 30-30 rifle.

"Young was hit in the head. The car, traveling pretty fast, caught together for a minute and then the Lincoln plunged away and ran down a bank at the side of the road. The door fell open on the driver's side and Young fell out.

"The dirty little crawled under the machine," Carl told me later. "But we sure got him. He look like his whole head was shot off."

"We learned afterwards, though, that Young wasn't killed after all. His wife was hit, though. A bullet caught her in the head and she's blind now.

"After the shooting, the Sheltons and Briggs and Skelcher lit off over a dirt road for Breese, north of the Okaw bottoms. They said they got gas and oil for the Dodge there and then went back over dirt roads to a mine near Herrin.

"The Sheltons told Briggs and Skelcher to keep out of sight there while they went to Herrin to see if the coast was clear.

"But Briggs and Skelcher, the the plan had no one to lead it on board. A crowd moved around and Young growled, 'Way don't you move.' Everybody moved but Freddie Wooten and me. We stayed right where we were about to get from the Lincoln and I said, 'We don't intend to move, do we, Freddie?' and Freddie said, 'No, we didn't. When the Glenn Fowler was saving the machine gun in front of himself and finally he made a lane. Young walked into the Courthouse where the Sheltons had already gone.

"I Won't Surrender!"

"Those kixers had got a warrant for me down in Williamson County. They accused me of stealing the car used in the Young shooting. Abe Hicks, a Ku Klux Justice of the Peace had issued it, and while I was still standing in the yard, Fowler and John Smith, the Herrin garage keeper, came along. Fowler walked up to me with his machine gun. 'I have a warrant for you,' he said. I pulled out my pistol because I knew it was my death to go back to Williamson County.

"I can't go to surrender, not by a damn sight," I said. 'If you're going to start something with that thing, it might as well be right now.'

"By that time my bunch had begun to gang up around me and it would have been kind of unhealthy for Fowler to get loose with that machine gun so he and Smith walked away.

"Later that day I talked to Joe McGinnis, our attorney, about surrendering on the warrant. 'Joe,' I said, 'I don't want those birds to frame me and I won't be even tried to get me down to surrender to Sheriff Ragen and I won't go back to Williamson.' So that was what happened and I was locked up in jail where Briggs was. Pretty soon Earl and Bernie were brought in but they made bond in an hour or two and were gone. Later I was released and Briggs was left in jail alone. The rest of us went home."

"That day Newman said, was the first occasion on which he had ever been followed by an armed guard. A former coal miner, a tea wagon salesman and later a restaurant proprietor at Maryville, a mining settlement east of East St. Louis, Newman had made a full acquaintance with firearms in the army and as private, corporal and Sergeant of the Thirty-eighth Field Artillery, had become proficient with the automatic.

the action and punch to their ventures. Wooten, who is small like Newman, but of more deliberative turn of mind, furnishes much of the thought. Like Newman, he is an adept with the dice, a cool head in a tight place and a good hand with a pistol, although he remains faithful to the old six-gun, while Newman carries the more modern automatic. There is less of action in Wooten's face than in Newman's, but more of thought, particularly in the high forehead and large brown eyes.

"Well," the narrator continued, "Young never did press the warrants against us and finally the whole thing was dropped. But meanwhile Charlie Briggs was still in jail and him being there caused a big row between Carl and Bernie."

Bernie and Briggs, it appeared from Newman's narrative, were inseparable—"Just like this," Newman illustrated, holding two fingers together. Carl and Earl, on the other hand, contended he "was no good"—a popular Williamson County expression which usually means that the "no good" man is going to be on the receiving end of some shooting.

"After the Carlyle hearing," Newman said, "Bernie and Carl kept chewing the whole thing over. Bernie wanted Carl to get bond for Briggs and Carl said he could not in jail. Finally he asked me to go to Heine Hamps and get bond for Briggs. Carl piped up and said he wouldn't go to Heine with me."

"Bernie said to Carl, 'It's funny you got everybody else out and won't get Charlie out.' I put in and said I'd see Heine and I did. Carl went along. Heine agreed to go on Charlie's bond, but Mr. Mulconery said he didn't want to go back to Carlyle again.

"Let's Kill Him!"

"When that fell through, Carl said to me, 'Let's try to get Briggs out some way. Let's get him and kill him because he is no good anyway.' I didn't say anything and we went back to the hotel and told Bernie that we couldn't arrange bond. Then Carl got hot again and said he wouldn't go out of his way to get Briggs out anyway.

"That made Bernie plenty sore and he began cursing Carl. Then they got to arguing about their wives and finally Carl hauled off and popped Bernie in the eye. He blacked it, too. Bernie beat it right across the street to the Savoy Hotel, where he had left his pistol, and came back with it in his hand.

"Meantime Carl came into my hotel. Bernie walked up and down in front of the place for half an hour with his pistol, waiting for Carl, but Carl wouldn't come out.

"He just sat inside and sat over and over again. 'Ain't it awful for brothers to fight?' Then he began to cry about it. He's a big cry baby anyhow. I understand he bawled when Chief of Police Gerk of St. Louis gave him a good talking to one time.

"After awhile I went out to Bernie and told him to cut out the row. He was plenty mad but the next day he made up with Carl because he knew they should be fighting the klan and not each other, and their fight looked bad to the public. Briggs got out of jail later but it didn't do him much good because he got killed last April 15 in a big election fight in Herrin."

New Plan to Get Young.

While Young was still in the hospital, it developed from Newman's story, there was considerable discussion of the advisability of trying again to kill him, and none was more in favor of it now than Newman and his fidus Achates, Freddie Wooten.

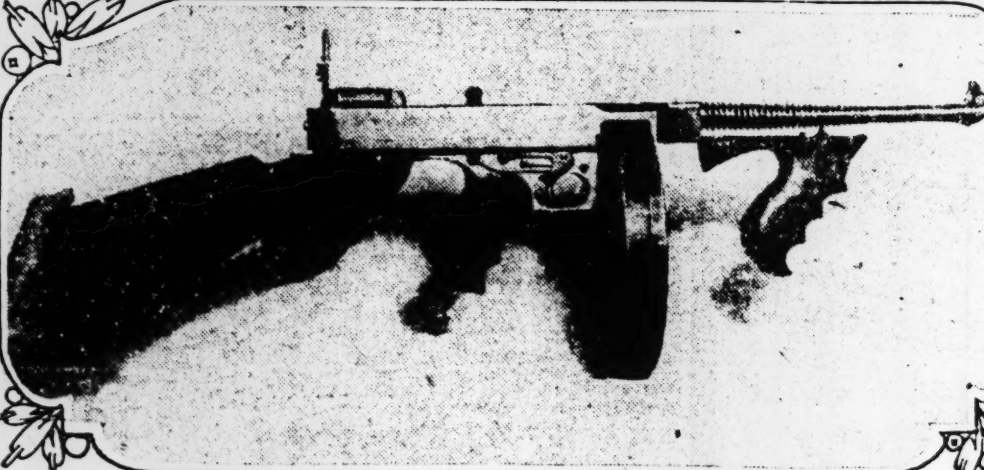

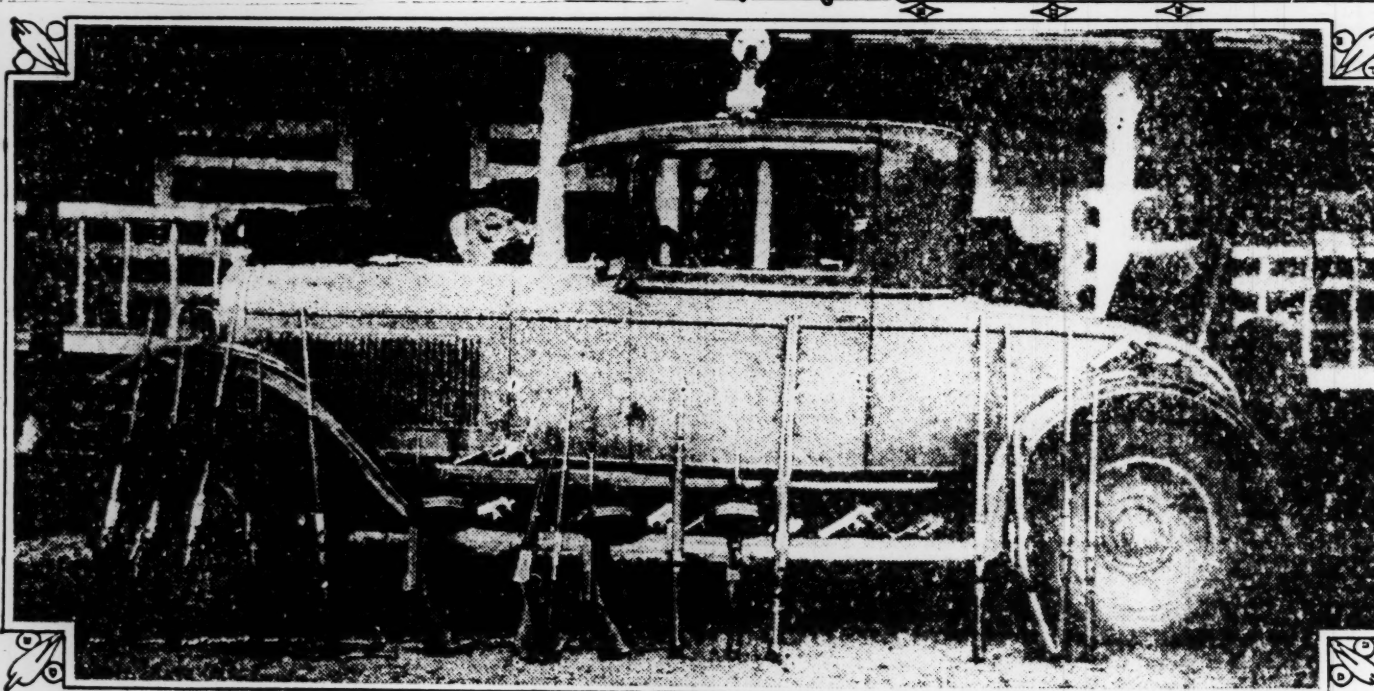

"I figured it this way," Newman said. "Young was after me. There was no doubt about that. He'd even tried to get me down to surrender to Sheriff Ragen and I wouldn't go back to Williamson." So that was what happened and I was locked up in jail where Briggs was. Pretty soon Earl and Bernie were brought in but they made bond in an hour or two and were gone. Later I was released and Briggs was left in jail alone. The rest of us went home."

"That day Newman said, was the first occasion on which he had ever been followed by an armed guard. A former coal miner, a tea wagon salesman and later a restaurant proprietor at Maryville, a mining settlement east of East St. Louis, Newman had made a full acquaintance with firearms in the army and as private, corporal and Sergeant of the Thirty-eighth Field Artillery, had become proficient with the automatic.

glized that if he went unhampered, Young was some day to lead a hard-riding campaign against them in their own town, and that the best hope of heading him off was to encourage antiklan gunmen, like the Sheltons, to greater activity.

"Just as soon as the Sheltons lit in my place they told me about firing on Young and his wife," Newman continued. "Young had left Herrin to go to East St. Louis and even before he took out of Herrin that peckered began to brag.

"He stood on the running board of his Lincoln in Herrin and when a crowd gathered around, he said: 'Boys, I'm going up to East St. Louis now. We've cleaned up Wil-

Eight-cylinder coupe, standing in front of Shady Rest, the Birger stronghold, since destroyed, in which Mr. and Mrs. Newman were riding when attacked by the Sheltons. Leaning against the running board are some of the weapons owned by the outfit.

$2500 to the man who would kill Young and tip the cleanup campaign in the bud.

"Young was the bird that put out this report," Newman said. "It was a damned lie, one day when Young was in East St. Louis, I got Deputy United States Marshal Buck Tolin to take me to Young. He introduced us and we talked for a while, all very pleasant. Finally I asked him if he had put out the story about the reward. He said no, he hadn't, but he had nothing against me and didn't intend to raid my place.

"I told Young that I wouldn't give money to get anybody killed, because if I wanted to kill a man I'd do it myself, for nothing. He said he felt the same way about it. So we shook hands and he said he'd like me to come around again some time for a longer talk. While we were chewing the affair over, 'Hard-rock' Davis, now the Night Chief of Police of Harrisburg, and Earl Owen and Glenn Fowler, Young's bodyguards, were there in the room. They heard the whole thing and so did Buck."

After the Young and Skelcher shooting, quiet reigned for a time in Williamson County. Young, with his wife, was under treatment at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Baltimore.

The first meeting of Young and Newman, it developed, was several weeks prior to the Okaw bottoms shooting. The klan was lining up East St. Louis for a quick cleanup by Young's raiders and Ford had off, a fellow named Crompton and a bunch of other klansmen."

Young and "Art" Meet.

"Of course, I wasn't shedding any tears about Young getting shot because I had met him before and even if he hadn't been a klansman he was no good. But I didn't like the idea of those boys shooting his wife because it was no fight for women, anyhow."

INSIDE STORIES OF THE GANG WARS IN SOUTHERN ILLINOIS

came along with Young they were going to take that louse away and kill him.

Young Had Just Left.

"Freddie and me tried to get Nick to go right to the hospital, but he said no, we'd go to the police station and get some help to serve the warrant. The Belleville police weren't anxious to help, so me and Freddie finally went to the hospital with him.

"We were out of luck. The slater told us Young had been discharged and had left two hours before. That was one time he dodged being killed, because if we had got him that day, it would have been his neck."

Young had gone to Herrin. Two weeks later he came to East St. Louis, accompanied by 10 auto loads of men, according to Newman, and made bond in the labor Temple at 418 Collingwood avenue, which was then the Ku Klux Klan headquarters.

"But I didn't press the charge," Newman concluded. "He slipped in and made bond before we could get him, and all the warrant had been got for in the first place was to put him where we could kill him."

BENEFIT PERFORMANCE AND DANCE FOR ACTORS' FUND

St. Louis' Share of $1,500,000 Endowment for Home Placed at $15,000.

St. Louis has been asked to contribute $15,000 to the $1,500,000 endowment of the Actors' Fund of America, which will care for sick and aged theatrical persons at the Home for Aged Actors, Staten Island, N. Y., and elsewhere. Nearly $1,000,000 has been subscribed in New York City, and other cities are being requested to give $500,000. Former Mayor Henry W. Kiel heads a committee of 120 persons in charge of the local campaign.

The plan is to give contributors something for their money, by selling 1000 tickets at $25 each which will admit to the performance of "The Vagabond King" at the Shubert-Rialto Theater, Friday evening, Feb. 25, and to a supper dance afterwards at Hotel Chase, at which stage stars in St. Louis at that time will offer entertainment.

DIES IN STOLEN CAR WRECK

Boy Killed, Two Hurt, Two Arrested, Near Maryville, Mo.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MARYVILLE, Mo., Jan. 31.—A boy is dead, his father is in the hospital, a third member of the party is seriously injured and two others are in the county jail here as the result of an automobile accident near Maryville, in this county, yesterday.

The boy, Everett Still, 13 years old, living near Maryville, was thrown from the car as it turned over. He died a few moments later. The father, Michael Still, was severely injured. The men held are Charles Dalton and Warren Hawk, both of St. Joseph, the latter a nephew of Still. Both are about 21. Dalton and Hawk drove the car to the home of Still Saturday night. Early in the morning they drove, with all the members of the Still family to the home of Al Morrison, the fifth man in the accident, about seven miles north of Maryville. The five left Morrison's home about 10 a. m. to drive to Maryville. Dalton, driving at high speed, lost control of the car, which is said to have turned over several times. Dalton and Hawk telephoned for a doctor, then disappeared. They were found hiding in a boxcar. The car was found to have been stolen from St. Joseph.

The 61-year-old baseball player had been here since Wednesday taking bath treatment for neuritis.

BOBBY CRUICKSHANK WINS TEXAS OPEN TOURNEY WITH SCORE OF 292

NABHOLTZ IS SECOND WITH TOTAL OF 295

Wild Bill Mehlhorn Ties for Third Place—Shreveport Tournament Next on Schedule of Golf Stars.

By the Associated Press.
SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 31.—With $1500 representing first place in the sixth annual Texas open golf tournament added to the prize pool similar honors in the recent Los Angeles open, Bobby Cruickshank of Purchase, N. Y., today led a field of professional and amateur golfers on the trek to Shreveport, La., where they will display their skill in a three-day session starting Friday.

Cruickshank, runner-up in last year's Texas open, yesterday turned in cards of 75 and 73 for a total of 292 to lead a field of more than 70 players by three strokes. His play over the Willow Spring course was consistent throughout the 72 holes despite a week of adverse weather which preceded the tournament. He dug a par 71 out of the mud Saturday morning and scored a 75 on the second round to capture honors for the first 36 holes.

Mehlhorn tied for third. Larry Nabholz of Cleveland made the final round in par to tie the second place with 295 while Wild Bill Mehlhorn of Los Angeles and Walter J. Goes to Chicago

The 61-year-old baseball executive had been here since last Wednesday taking bath treatments for neuritis.

"I feel like a new man," Johnson said before boarding the train. "When I finish my important business in Chicago I am coming back and will stay until I am cured."

Johnson declined to discuss his attitude toward Commissioner K. Landis or baseball affairs, saying he would attend to those matters when he returned.

HAGEN AGREES TO MATCH WITH SARAZEN

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 31.—Walter Hagen, professional golf champion, who competed in the San Antonio golf tournament, yesterday wired Miami Chamber of Commerce that he would meet Gene Sarazen in the first half of a special 72-hole match on the Miami Biltmore course here Feb. 27.

The last 36 holes of the special game will be played over the Pasadena club course, where Hagen defeats the winter, at a date to be set later.

GERALD PATTERSON AGAIN WINS TITLE

MELBOURNE, Jan. 31.—Gerald Patterson is again the lawn tennis singles champion of Australia. In the final today he defeated J. B. Haskes after a hard struggle at 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

Paired with Haskes, Patterson also won the doubles championship, defeating Pat O'Hara Wood and J. O. Melnes in straight sets at 6-1, 6-2.

3-Cornered Tie Likely in School Basketball Race

Soldan and Beaumont Picked to Win With Leading Roosevelt Team Idle.

A three-cornered tie for the leadership of the Public High School Basketball League is likely to result from next week's games in the fifth round of the schedule, when Soldan plays Central and Beaumont meets the Cleveland High quintet, which again leads the race, with three victories and one defeat, draws the bye.

The return of Capt. "Irish" Neil added new interest to the fight for the title by making possible Beaumont's 26 to 25 defeat of Soldan Saturday. The North Side leader scored 14 points against Harry White's team, besides playing a whirlwind defensive game, so that the bulk of the credit for the victory goes to him. Neil averaged 14 points to the game in the seven contests he played last year. Coach Lewis is still without the services of Weiss, whose early return would greatly increase Beaumont's chances of winning the championship.

Beaumont Strengthened.

Lewis has announced, however, the acquisition of two new men who have been ineligible during the first semester. Holbrook, a guard, and Steindemann, who plays forward and center. Both were squad members last year and participated in several games. Their return will furnish Beaumont with badly needed reserve strength. Beaumont should be able to win from Cleveland next Saturday without much difficulty. Coach Neuman's team having lost its three previous games.

Soldan will be favored to defeat Central, although Callan's team is likely to show some improvement, after a week's layoff.

Roosevelt's showing Saturday, when the Rough Riders barely defeated Cleveland by a two-point margin, was somewhat disappointing. After starting the game well and outplaying Neuman's quintet decisively in the first half, Roosevelt showed up considerably in the final period and scored only one field goal, while Weinhard was leading a Cleveland rally that fell not so very short.

The Standings:

Won Lost Score Avg.

Roosevelt 4 1 15 60

Beaumont 3 1 15 60

Soldan 3 1 15 60

Central 1 3 25 40

Cleveland 1 3 25 40

Rickey Goes to Columbus To Sign Billy Southworth

Outfielder Declines Terms Offered in Contract Submitted Recently by Management—Document Calls for Same Salary as Last Season.

Billy Southworth, who became one of the heroes of the world series when he hit Urban Shocker for a home run in the second game at Yankee Stadium, has refused to sign the contract offered him for 1927 by the Cardinals, the Post-Dispatch learned this morning.

Southworth, interviewed at his home at Columbus, O., said that the Cardinals had sent him a contract two weeks ago, calling for the same salary that he received under the contract assigned to the Cardinals last summer when the Giant outfield star was traded to St. Louis for Heine Mueller. Southworth said he had returned the contract with a "condemned letter" outlining his reasons for expecting an increase and that up to this morning he had heard nothing more from the St. Louis club.

Rickey in Columbus.

A telephone call to the home of Branch Rickey this morning brought the information that the business manager of the world champions had departed for Columbus last night and it is probable that Rickey is there for the purpose of trying to sign the Cardinal outfielder for the coming season.

Southworth is the fourth outstanding member of the Cardinals dissatisfied with the terms of the contract offered for 1927. The others are Jess Haines, Flint Rhem and Grover Alexander, right-handed pitching stars.

Tommy Thewnow and Lester Bell, infield stars, said they had not yet signed their contracts, but that they were thinking them over and did not want to be classed as holdouts.

MUD FORCES REFEREE TO POSTPONE SOCCER GAME IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—With the score tied 1-1, in the New York Giants and Indiana Flooring American Soccer League game at New York oval yesterday, Referee McCabe called a halt to the contest seven minutes after the interval owing to the unplayable state of the ground, which had been churned up into a sea of mud several inches deep. The game will be replayed later in the season.

Despite the uncertain weather outlook nearly 2000 fans were on hand when the tussle got underway.

ST. LOUIS U. TO MEET ST. XAVIER SATURDAY

St. Louis University will play a return game with St. Xavier of Cincinnati Saturday at the Billiken gymnasium in the only collegiate contest of the week locally. The Billikens recently lost to St. Xavier in Cincinnati, 54 to 31.

American Derby Set for June 19

Homewood Track, With Financial Affairs Straightened Out, to Open Again.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 31.—Robert M. Switzer, president and general manager of the Illinois Jockey Club, operating the Washington Park track at Homewood, Ill., accompanied by Senator Thomas Curran, were among the visitors Saturday at Fair Grounds race track here.

Switzer was highly elated with racing prospects for this season and also expressed his satisfaction with the date arrangement. He announced that the American Derby would be run on June 18 and that details for the other stake offerings would be arranged some time next week at a conference.

The intention is not to have stakes conflict and afford better opportunity for owners to give their charges more chance to compete in the valuable fixtures at the various Mid-Western courses.

Switzer also intimated that all financial difficulties had been bridges and that the future for the Washington Park course appeared extremely rosy.

Fair Grounds Notes.

Trainer Simms, who handles the Pueblo Stable horses, is confined to his home with illness.

F. H. Smith returned from Miami. Jockey E. Emery, under contract to him, will also be here Monday.

Jockey J. C. McCoy was fined $50 by the stewards for violation of the agents rule. His agent, J. J. Ault, was also fined $25.

Brooklyn Wanderers Win.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—After a record first period in which both sides accumulated themselves to the muddy field, the Brooklyn Wanderers won their American Soccer League match from Newark by the score of 2 goals to 1 at David's Stadium in Newark before 7000 spectators yesterday.

Sam Bredon, owner of the club, has declined to comment on the contracts or demands of any of the Cardinals, except to say that he has a larger percentage of signed contracts this year than at the same time in 1926.

WEEK OPENS WITH STOCK LIST HIGHER

Rails and Industrials Join in Upturn but No Evidence of Anxiety on Part of Shorts—Spanish Exchange Up.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Although leading industrial and railroad shares pointed generally toward higher levels in today's moderately active session of the stock market, advanced were insufficient to frighten speculators for the decline in covering their commitments, and toward the close many stocks were rather freely offered. As a result, the finish was rather unsettled. Attempts were made at intervals to compel a retreat on the part of the bear group, but aside from a few brisk recoveries the forward movement lacked impetus. Plentiful supplies of funds encouraged traders in quest of higher levels, but as a rule they were content with small advances and quickly took profit. In the bond market, however, the credit situation found a more favorable response. Foreign securities continued to attract investors and speculators with the result that several government issues were recorded. Industrial gains were in good demand.

"Money was factor. "Revival of speculation for the rise in industrial specialties, although seemingly dominated largely by professional operators, probably was based on the continued advance of money for trading purposes. Credit remained relatively tight in contrast with the run-up in a year ago to 5 1/2 per cent. In commission house circles and in offices of money brokers it was believed the Federal Reserve Bank here would report another decrease in borrowings of brokers and dealers, it was confidently expected the total of loans to members of the Stock Exchange would be reduced. This factor was the increased activity in commercial paper, reflecting apprehensions for trading credit. Sentiment was helped as much by psychological factors, however, as by concrete evidence of easy money rates.

"Gains in Rails Not Pronounced. "Undoubtedly the most favorable factor was the increased activity in commercial paper, reflecting apprehensions for trading credit. Sentiment was helped as much by psychological factors, however, as by concrete evidence of easy money rates.

"Grains Are Down. "In the principal commodity markets the drift was downward. May wheat contracts, having a good bushel at the close and on falling fractionally. Cotton fell back slightly, good support being encountered on small ratios.

"Madrid Exchange Higher. "Another sharp advance in rates on Madrid provided the only fluctuation of importance in the foreign exchange market. At 16 1/2, the rate sold at the highest level since 1926. Weakness in Swiss and Dutch rates was another development of the day. Norwegian exchange continued to point to higher levels. Sterling held steady, while French and Italian rates eased off slightly. Silver exchanges also were somewhat lower.

"Loans Held by Brokers and Dealers Declined. "By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Loans held by brokers and dealers from New York City Federal Reserve bank member banks amounted to $2,741,940,000 for the week ending Jan. 25, compared with $2,751,720,000 for the previous week. It was announced today by the Federal Reserve Board.

All at Sea

A New Mystery Thriller

CHAPTER I.

OF ALL scenes of sheer gaiety or relaxed conventionality, of utter freedom from responsibility, care or trouble, there is no spot to compare with an ocean bathing beach.

The wine-dark sea may stretch its dangerous depths to the far horizon in one direction, but with its seething spots of civilization, don't a beauty as exotic and alluring as her may yawn with equal dangers on the other side.

Bars are let down, restraint flies, caste is forgotten, and high and low, good and bad, real and imitation are made free and equal by the one touch of salt water that makes the whole world kin.

Among the beaches best adapted for sea dipping are those on the coast of New Jersey, and of those one of the finest is the great resort called Ocean Town.

Its habitués contend that nowhere else is the temperature of the water always as it should be, and the adjustment of the sun's rays a counsel of perfection.

Year after year, the lovers of the place return with joy and leave with regret.

July opened auspiciously. Everything was in readiness for an enormous celebration of the national holiday, and those who could do so came a few days ahead of the crowds, to get, as it were, a running start.

The noonday sun shone down on hundreds of human hands in long straight rows, human flairs, rather, as each tightly clasped itself round the hard, thick rope that shot its way far out into the ocean.

With many the sea bath consisted in a continuous frantic clutch on the life-line, while the more adventurous dared let go, and buffet the spent waves near the shore.

Others still, and these were the ones that turned gray the hair of the life guards, were possessed to swim out far beyond their depths, and beyond all bounds of wisdom or safety. But the lure of the surf, a subtle spell and its danger seem negligible when the great waves call.

On the other side of the last lace-edged fringe of the combers, the beach groups sat about in utter bliss of contentment.

Here, a family from an inner county of the State; there a small crowd from the Middle West; yonder a gay bunch from New York City itself.

A quiet, sophisticated-looking group of five consisted of three men, a young woman and a girl.

The girl wore a modish swimming suit of blue jersey, flowered in quiet colors, with a rubberized silk bathing cap and hemp-soled sandals.

Her little eagerness proclaimed her a swimmer, and she was manifestly impatient to start.

The other woman, only slightly older, was garbed in an elaborate bathing costume of flowered crepe de chine, with a compeitish beret that fell over to one side of her curly bobbed hair. Clearly, she had no intention of dampening her newly marcelled locks. Her frock was ruffled and sashed, and a smart beach cape of flowered silk fell from her shoulders.

Her lovely face was alight with fun, her eyes dancing with laughter, when, suddenly catching sight of some men and women approaching, she gave a stifled, startled exclamation, and swung the gay parasol she was holding round till it shielded her face.

"What's the matter, Maddy?" cried the girl by her side, "cozy?"

"Sun in my eyes," was the reply, but when the parasol was again pushed aside, the dark eyes, with their heavy brows, lacked all hint of laughter, and the red lips paled beneath their red, and called for a fresh application from the eameled vanity case she carried.

The oldest of the three men rose and shook himself like a big dog.

"Come on, people," he said, "what are we waiting for? I suppose, Robin, you and Angelica will take your life in your hands, as usual."

"Yes, rather," and the girl in the swimming suit scrambled to her feet. "Today we're going way out—farther than ever before."

"Fools!" growled the older man. "I wouldn't mind, only it's so expensive to subsidize a guard to pay exclusive attention to you two idiots. Well, go to it."

They all rose then, the beautiful Madeline Barron, in her French costume, and her adoring husband, Ned Barron, the copper king.

The pretty girl, Angelica Fair, was her friend and guest, and the other two, father and son, were Croydon Sears and his boy, Robin.

But, about to start, Madeline was delayed by the appearance of her five-year-old daughter, with her nurse.

The baby was in bathing rumpers and placed at the prospect of soap in piddling. Both parents stopped and sat down on the sand up.

"Go ahead, you people," Robin said, and rose, looking at Ned like a cat at a mouse. "When come along in a minute. We want to hear him. But I promised these ladies to play with Poppy."

So the others went on, Robin and Angelica, who were expert swimmers, to brave the waves out to a daring distance, and Croydon from responsibility, care or trouble, down until the Barrons joined him.

Another group on the beach that morning was keyed to a somewhat different pitch. The dominating spirit was Carmelita Valdon, a beauty as exotic and alluring as her name.

Her beach pajamas were distinctly Parisian and a step or two ahead of American fashions. But then Carmelita was a step or two ahead of most things and most people, and her orientation and Japanese parasol made a picture that was as attractive as it was colorful.

Her woman companion made a perfect foil for Mrs. Barnaby, who was fair, fat and 40, and dressed the part.

Also she was of great importance socially, and possessed of a sharp tongue, so her favorites fawned on her, while her enemies gave her a wide berth.

"Duchess," said Carmelita, in languid accents, "aren't you going in this morning?"

"Of course," returned Mrs. Barnaby, who bore the noble nickname. "Shall we toddle now?"

"No hurry," put in Garrett Folsom. "I only came yesterday, you know. I want to look about a few minutes."

He was a big man, and his bathing costume of worsted shirt and trunks was becoming to him. The color was a silver gray, with three black strips across the chest, and a white belt with black stripes.

Perhaps 50, his hair was gray at the temples, but his face was unlined and his eyes clear and bright.

Deep-set, dark eyes they were, that had looked upon much of this world, for better and for worse, and whose shrewd appraisals were rarely at fault.

Now, he was observing the beach crowd, the young girls and women in their alluring costumes and the men in their scarcely scantier garb.

"The bathing suits grow better every year," he said, with an appreciative glance at the passing throng, and then at the two women in his own party.

"Oh, come on," said Neville, the other member of their quartet, "you can look at them in the shop windows on the Boardwalk later. I assure you, Garry, they have some stunning rigs on show."

"But perhaps it isn't only the garment that pleases the eye of Folsom," Carmelita Valdon suggested, wishing now she had worn a more décolleté effect than her chic pajama suit.

"Everything pleases me," he declared, smiling, and rose, stretching himself luxuriously as he feasted his eyes on the gorgeous scene. "I haven't been down here for three years, and the place is renewing its charm for me. I always did revel in it. I only wish I could swim in the surf. Look at those chaps way out beyond the breakers! That's the stuff."

"Don't you swim?" asked the Duchess. "I'm glad, for then you'll stay with us. I hate men who get me clutched to the rope and then say, 'Excuse me a moment,' and the next thing you know they're out beyond the three-mile limit!"

"Nothing like that!" Folsom smiled at her. "I can swim all day in still water, but not in the surf. Probably could, after a little practice."

"Not practice; stay with us," smiled Mrs. Valdon, and Folsom agreed to do so.

So the four of them grasped the rope, and, like puppets on a string, jumped up and down, sprang at the oncoming waves, choked and laughed as the salt water dashed over them and behaved generally like irresponsible children in a big bathtub.

Roger Neville, unable to resist the call of the surf, swam away, took an incoming breaker head on, and came up smiling on top of it. "Get into the water, Garry," he called out. "It's great, really, and there's almost no underdog today. If you're carried off there are scores of life guards about who'll pick you up."

"Oh, I'm not exactly timid!" returned Folsom, and, looking at Neville, he said, "When come along in a minute. We want to hear him. But I promised these ladies to play with Poppy."

"You did so!" insisted Carmelita, who stood next to him, and who laid a detaining hand on his own, as it grasped the rope next to hers. "If you want to swim, choose some other time. Just now you are a squire of dames. Isn't he, Duchess?"

"You bet he is!" exclaimed Mrs. Barnaby, wiping salt water out of her eyes with the back of her hand, while hanging on to the rope with the other. "If he deserts us, he goes dry land. I know I'm going to be swept out to sea by this next wave. Oh, mercy! here it comes! It's like a wall of water!"

It was a wall of water, and it engulfed the party as well as hundreds of other bathers near them.

The Duchess coughed and spluttered, but gamely held her ground. Carmelita took advantage of her friend's bewilderment to slip from her place on the rope, and exchange with the Duchess, thus bringing herself next to Folsom, a position she had coveted from the first.

"How's Mrs. Barnaby? She all right?" Folsom asked, bending over to see the lady in question.

"All right, yes!" growled the Duchess, "but that snipjack slid into my place! Now I shall be drowned, I'm sure!"

But her words were lost in the roar of another approaching wave, and she gave over talking and devoted all her attention to preserving her equilibrium, and keeping her hold on the rope.

Far out, beyond the rough and tumble of the breakers, the two expert swimmers sat on an anchored raft.

"You're a marvel, Robin," the girl said. "I'm glad Fate sent me a life mate who loves swimming. I believe you could swim all the way across."

"Probably not," returned Robin Sears. "But I'd get as far as the next fellow. I'll bet on that! And, too, Angel, endurance isn't the only test."

"No, but you'd pass all the rest, too. You can swim every way, can't you?"

"Of course. Sideways, on my back, under water, any old way. You're a bit of a wonder yourself, you know. For a girl."

"Oh, yes, for a girl I'm all right. Not every girl could get out here with you. But I can't do any trick swimming."

"You can learn. I'll teach you. But no more today. You're a bit winded, and we must be getting back, or we'll be late for luncheon."

Diving gracefully, Angelica came up beside Robin, and with long, capable strokes they made for the shore.

"There they are—I see Maddy's cap!" the girl cried as they came nearer the line of rope cingers. "Let's go there."

Assisted by a friendly wave, they reached their goal and scrambled to their feet, seeking a vacant space on the rope. But it was crowded, so they laughingly moved over toward the next rope.

"Better go in now," Ned Barron called to them, and a wave of her hand told him that Angelica had heard and would obey.

"Wonderful swimmers, your two young friends," said a voice next him, and Barron turned to see a stranger smiling at him.

"Yes," he replied, a little curiously, for he had a deeply rooted aversion to making friends in the ocean.

But the friendly stranger wouldn't accept rebuff, and went on, affably: "Haven't been here for some years. Quite a lot of change. Mostly in the women's bathing suits—for the better, of course."

The speech grated on Ned Barron's taste, but the voice was cultured and the man's appearance both civil and correct.

A clubman and a gay one, Barron sized him up at once.

"From the West?" he said, with more perspicacity than tact.

"Yep. That is, Chicago. You alone?"

As he spoke, he leaned forward to see Barron's next neighbor. It was his wife, Madeline, and Ned leaned his own big body forward to intercept the stranger's regard.

"No, not alone, my wife is with me," he said, and perhaps no such short sentence ever carried greater weight of advice.

The curtness of the speech, combined with a direct glance straight into the other man's eyes, carried understanding challenge, and a note of warning that was unmistakable and definite. Only a dumb brain would have failed to grasp Ned Barron's intent, and Garrett Folsom's brain was anything but dumb.

"Where's Roger?" he asked, turning back to his own party, who were at his right hand.

"There he is," and Carmelita Valdon glanced admiringly at Neville, swimming with long, clean strokes toward them. "I know you're just dying to swim away, Mr. Folsom. Go ahead, if you like. I'll stand guard over the Duchess."

A smile of gratitude thanked her for this, and Folsom let go the rope and swam into an oncoming wave.

But he quickly returned.

"It's too hard on me," he exclaimed, laughing, while he puffed and panted for breath. "I must get used to it by degrees. I'm not as fit in condition as I ought to be."

She had saved his place on the rope for him, and he slipped in between her and Barron again.

"Who's this chap on my left?" he said to her. "Do you know?"

"I know him slightly, yes. He's a Mr. Barron, from New York. I think, or near New York. Why?"

"No reason at all. Idle curiosity. I thought I saw him at our hotel last evening."

"Yes, they're staying there. A party of several. Don't you think we'd better be getting along home now? I've had about enough."

"Yes, let's collect Neville and get out. Who oo, Roger?"

But no one responded to his summons, and Mrs. Barnaby began to fret.

"Let's go on out, anyway," she said. "That's Roger all over. He always runs clear off, just when we want him most. Come, Mr. Folsom, help me to shore. I'll have to let go the rope, it's so full of bathers this morning. I never saw such a crowd on this beach before!"

"Oh, yes," Carmelita said, "often and often. But these days just before Fourth of July bring extra hordes of people."

"Wonderful sight!" and once more Garrett Folsom gave himself over to admiring it. "I've bathed on nearly every beach in Europe, but none of them can touch this for magnitude."

"Not at all exclusive, though," and the Duchess gave a fastidious little sniff. "All sorts and conditions of men, I call it."

"That's part of its charm," laughed Folsom. "I like to rub shoulders with the proletariat, now and then. Especially when I can't tell them from the patricians! And who can, in the ocean?"

Ocean Town was not exclusive. It held out welcoming arms to anybody and everybody who could pay its prices and would be have properly.

But as a spectacle, as an enigma, it invited attention, and with something of the lure of a crossword puzzle, it intrigued the imagination of those who saw it as a form of mental entertainment.

One man in particular never tired of watching the ocean show from the coign of vantage which was his chosen resting spot.

The great Hotel Majusaca had, in common with its neighboring hostelrys, a large deck, as it was called, the same being an enormous veranda or platform extending partly out over the Boardwalk.

Titus Riggs, known to all his own world as Tite, spent his morning here, in one of the great rockers provided for indolent guests, and let his gaze wander idly over the bathers.

Though not at all a hermit, he was not a sociable sort, and seldom made new friends.

His vocation was that of an architect, his avocation to view quietly and unostentatiously his fellow men.

For a holiday, he chose to come down to Ocean Town, where the architecture was among the worst on earth.

On this Saturday morning, Riggs sat in his great rocker, slumped down in a somewhat ungainly heap, and watched, aided at times by a pair of field glasses. He was not looking for or expecting anything to happen—anything unusual, that is—he was content just to look at the moving picture spread out before his eyes.

And then, something did happen, or rather something had happened.

As he looked he saw people in the sea, gathering in a huddle at one spot.

He saw one and then another of the life guards stride to the ever-enlarging group, and he saw them fairly fling the bathers aside as they hurried.

Riggs took up his field glasses and saw the guards carry from the crashing waves the helpless form of a man, a large man in a gray bathing suit, and lay their burden down on the beach.

Riggs kept on watching closely. And then another man from the ocean came and bent over the stricken one.

Riggs could hear no word, but he gathered from the look of finality on the face of this man who made an examination, that the victim of cramp, or whatever the trouble was, was past help.

It was a strange scene. Without doubt the investigating man was a doctor and had pronounced the other man dead. No other hypothesis could explain the helpless, hopeless appearance of those nearest the unconscious man, and no other meaning could be read into the faces of the shocked crowd.

Not often did Tite Riggs give way to curiosity. But in this instance he rose and went down the steps, crossed the Boardwalk and walked out on the beach.

CHAPTER II.

AS Titus Riggs drew near the crowd on the beach, he found himself restrained by a stalwart policeman, who forbade him to advance another step.

"Who is it?" he asked, and so pleasant was Riggs' manner, that the strong arm of the law unbent enough to answer.

"Garrett Folsom, they say," he replied, and Tite Riggs ejaculated, "Good Lord!" though whether the words were an expression of pity or merely an exclamation of astonishment was not obvious.

"Is he dead?" Riggs pursued.

"As a doornail!"

"Cramp? Stroke?"

"How do I know?" returned the other. "Anyway, they gotta get him off the beach!"

"I should think so. Is that a doctor bending over him?"

"Guess so. He seems to be giving orders. Though it ain't up to him to say what to do."

"Who is it up to?"

"I don't rightly know. But I s'pose the life guards will take him to his hotel and they'll see to him there."

The life guards bore the body through the crowds, two or three uniformed officers making a way, and, though followed by a horde of curiosity seekers, most of the beach population went back to the surf or the sand.

Roger Neville and the two women who had been the bathing companions of the dead man conferred quickly as they stood on the beach.

"You'd better go straight to your bath-houses and dress," he told the others, "and I'll do the same. Then hurry to the hotel; we'll all be asked for."

"Why?" inquired the Duchess, her eyes wide with amazement. "We had nothing to do with his stroke, or whatever it was, I'm not going to get into the papers as a friend of Garrett Folsom's."

"Why not?" asked Mrs. Valdon. "There are lots of worse people than that man."

"Oh, not that, but I object to publicity, and I won't be interviewed."

"Don't worry," Neville said. "Folsom's an important man in some ways, but his death won't make a dent down here. What does Ocean Town care for a sudden death more or less?"

"I suppose that's so," the Duchess said, with a relieved air. "Well, I'll get dressed, anyhow. Come along, Carmy. It's spoiled our swim for today."

"Don't be so heartless," said the other. "I'm all upset. I think a sudden death is fearful. And we'll be in the limelight, I don't care what Roger says. I think I'll go straight back home. Do you suppose his sister will come here?"

"Didn't know he had a sister."

"Well, he has. A Tartar. One of those strong-minded persons."

They disappeared into their respective bath-houses and dressed as rapidly as they could in the cramped and uncomfortable quarters.

Although the bathhouses belonging to the Hotel Majusaca were roomy compared with some, they were not luxurious dressing rooms, and when the two women at last emerged they both expressed a desire to reach their own bedrooms unnoted.

This they accomplished and set to work to repair the ravages of an ocean bath.

But, though they had reached a quiet haven, there was anything but quiet down in the hotel lobby, several floors beneath them.

The suave and impassive gentlemen, who had the well-being of the hotel in their charge were upset one after another with terrific suddenness and swiftness.

The pompous doorman was the first to be affected, and he was minded at first to refuse admittance to the sinister-looking procession that carried a covered, still form on a stretcher.

But his half-hearted objections were promptly overruled, and the ghastly burden was carried to the office of the hotel and the manager was called for.

The manager not being present for the moment, the room clerk stepped forward, closely followed by the vigilant hotel detectives.

These two were promptly bowled over, as the doorman had been, by the information that the body they bore was one of the hotel's guests and must receive immediate attention.

"Who is it?" asked the flabbergasted room clerk, losing for once his imperial air.

"Garrett Folsom," he was told, and thereupon lost his last remnant of self-possession.

"You'll have to take him away," he almost screamed. "We can't have anything like that here! The guests won't stand for it. The hotel can't have it! Take him to the morgue or the undertaker's—or somewhere!"

"Wait a minute," said the hotel detective, who was named Dixon. "What has happened?"

One of the life guards answered him.

"Mr. Folsom had a stroke or a fit of some sort, and died in the ocean or just after his being brought to the beach—I don't know."
